

gone ashore. Dr. Hogan retired on June 1.¹ The Editors and staff of The American Journal of Psychiatry take note of the retirement of this estimable and helpful associate and friend.

As Dr. Hogan retires, he takes with him the good wishes, the thanks, and the highest regard of his friends and associates. All join in wishing him well and sending him that terse but meaningful message that is treasured by all Navy men: "Well Done."

F.J.B.

¹ As this is written there is word that Dr. Hogan's services on a part-time basis have been requested by the officers of the Assembly that he has served so well. Thus he will not be completely absent from our midst.

Experiments in the Psychiatric Education of the Primary Physician

INTERNISTS ARE MORE RECEPTIVE to psychiatry than psychiatrists are to their need for continuing education in general medicine, despite the ever-increasing demand for a reciprocal exchange of knowledge. This was noted recently at the 52nd annual meeting of the American College of Physicians and at the 124th annual meeting of the APA. Cogent and stimulating reports of two entirely different experiments in educating the "medical man" in personality functioning and psychiatric disorders were described at these meetings.

The two projects, each extending over three years, were initiated by a task force composed of the APA Committee in Liaison with the ACP and the ACP Committee in Liaison with the APA. They were under the direction of the American College and were funded by a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health. One program was carried on at the Faulkner Hospital, Boston, under the direction of Drs. John R. Graham and John F. Reichard and the other at the St. Thomas-Baptist Hospitals, Nashville, by Drs. Robert M. Roy and Charles B. Smith. Drs. Graham and Roy are internists of note, and Drs. Reichard and Smith are APA Fellows.

The Faulkner Hospital project utilized the nonpsychiatrist's office as the primary teaching site; the St. Thomas-Baptist Hospital project used the general hospital. In both programs an average of ten to 14 physician students were involved—practically all continuing for the three years. Analysis of experience in both programs indicated that there continues to be a wide gulf between psychiatry and internal medicine, that about ten percent of any medical specialty group is interested in formal psychiatric training, and that students can quickly learn the principles of psychiatric evaluation well enough to discuss them; however, to use them with facility requires a good deal of clinical experience. Furthermore, it was the consensus that teaching a limited number of medical doctors in a general hospital over a prolonged period was more effective than occasionally teaching a large number now and then.

At the St. Thomas-Baptist Hospitals approximately 25 sessions

Psychiatric Education Prologue To The 1980s:

Psychiatric Education Anne H. Rosenfeld, 1976 American Psychiatry After World War II (1944-1994) Roy W. Menninger, John C. Nemiah, 2008-11-01 The history of psychiatry is complex reflecting diverse origins in mythology cult beliefs astrology early medicine law religion philosophy and politics This complexity has generated considerable debate and an increasing outflow of historical scholarship ranging from the enthusiastic meliorism of pre World War II histories to the iconoclastic revisionism of the 1960s to more focused studies such as the history of asylums and the validity and efficacy of Freudian theory This volume intended as a successor to the centennial history of American psychiatry published by the American Psychiatric Association in 1944 summarizes the significant events and processes of the half century following World War II Most of this history is written by clinicians who were central figures in it In broad terms the history of psychiatry after the war can be viewed as the story of a cycling sequence shifting from a predominantly biological to a psychodynamic perspective and back again all presumably en route to an ultimate view that is truly integrated and interacting all the while with public perceptions expectations exasperations and disappointments In six sections Drs Roy Menninger and John Nemiah and their colleagues cover both the continuities and the dramatic changes of this period The first four sections of the book are roughly chronological The first section focuses on the war and its impact on psychiatry the second reviews postwar growth of the field psychoanalysis and psychotherapy psychiatric education and psychosomatic medicine the third recounts the rise of scientific empiricism biological psychiatry and nosology and the fourth discusses public attitudes and perceptions of public mental health policy deinstitutionalization antipsychiatry the consumer movement and managed care The fifth section examines the development of specialization and differentiation exemplified by child and adolescent psychiatry geriatric psychiatry addiction psychiatry and forensic psychiatry The concluding section examines ethics and women and minorities in psychiatry Anyone interested in psychiatry will find this book a fascinating read

Psychosomatic Medicine Adam J. Krakowski, 2012-12-06 It is our pleasure to introduce to the readers of Advances in Psychosomatic Medicine I the authors of 88 papers presented at the VIth World Congress of the International College of Psychosomatic Medicine in Montreal September 13-18 1981. These papers are representative of more than 700 presentations and discussions that occurred in the course of lectures, symposia, panels and workshops. Adam J. Krakowski, M.D., primary editor of this volume together with Chase P. Kimball, M.D., G. Unsel Koptagel, M.D., and Hellmuth Freyberger, M.D., are responsible for the solicitation and final editing of the papers included in this volume. Most of the plenary papers presented at the Congress and subsequently received for publication are in preparation for a volume to be issued by S. Karger, Basel, Switzerland, as a special number edited by us with the assistance of Drs. Freyberger and Koptagel. The papers included in this volume represent the main substance of the Congress. The editors regret that a number of presentations were either received too late or in insufficient form to allow for publication at this time. A number of other papers presented at the Congress have been released for publication in the Journal of Psychosomatic Research, the Psychiatric Journal of the University of Ottawa, General Hospital Psychiatry, Psychosomatics and other journals.
