Reasoning Inductive Deductive And Fallacious:

The Art of Logical Thinking William Walker Atkinson, 1909 William Walker Atkinson an attorney by trade explains different kinds of logic and reasoning deductive inductive and hypothetical The author begins by describing how the mind forms ideas and concepts and then subjects these to the mental processes of higher reasoning The memory stores a repository of terms which are different from concepts in that they apply exclusively to the name of things Through reasoning the mind can arrive at a judgment of a given thing or idea and through simple distinction can reject what is false for instance the notion that a horse is a cow Moving on from these simple examples Atkinson describes how complex judgments and analyses are formed by the mind Piecing together an accurate chain of events forms a kind of inductive reasoning for example if several people enters a store empty handed and later emerge with bags of fruit and vegetables is it sensible to infer that it is a grocery store Deriving conclusions from facts and events is forming a hypothesis with the use of information assertions can be made to arrive at a sensible conclusion without personally entering said store based on known facts it is credible to hypothesize that it sells groceries
