Mediterranean Archaeological Landscapes Current Issues:

Mediterranean Archaeological Landscapes Effie F. Athanassopoulos, Luann Wandsnider, 2010-11-24 The Mediterranean landscape record is recognized for its length and richness and the opportunity it offers to study the interaction between humans and their landscape This volume explores a variety of current archaeological issues in the context of specific landscapes from southern Spain through Greece and Cyprus to Jordan and from antiquity to recent times Over the last 25 years researchers have initiated a dramatic expansion in theoretical approaches both anthropological and classical Over the same time span a huge volume of field survey projects has been carried out in the Mediterranean arena The contributors to Mediterranean Archaeological Landscapes take stock of what has been learned identify lacunae and consider new approaches to our understanding of the rich surface landscape record of the Mediterranean Their goal is to explore theoretically diverse interpretative themes and the methods that make those approachable

Mediterranean Valley

Graeme Barker, 1995-01-01 From the lakeside encampment of Stone Age scavengers three quarters of a million years ago to the problems facing modern day farmers A Mediterranean Valley documents the long term settlement history of the Biferno Valley in central southern Italy analysing the symbiotic relationship of its landscape and its inhabitants Integrating the techniques of archaeology history and geography this volume traces the history of human settlement in the Valley and shows how it is inextricably linked to the parallel story of landscape development Unique in its geographical and historical time scale the Biferno Valley project is widely cited within the archaeological community and is considered the best example to date of the importance of human settlement in shaping the Mediterranean landscape

Mediterranean Islands, Fragile Communities and Persistent Landscapes Andrew Bevan, James Conolly, 2013-05-31 Explores the human ecology and history of Antikythera over the full course of its approximately seven thousand year history of human activity

Regional Survey in the Mediterranean Luke Hayward Sollars, 2001

Mediterranean Landscapes in Post Antiquity Sauro Gelichi, Lauro Olmo Enciso, Elisa Corrà, Manuel Castro Priego, 2019 The study of landscape has in recent years been a field for considerable analytical archaeological experimentation Although the Mediterranean is the home of classicism it has seen the implementation of projects of this new kind and in regions of Spain and Italy after some delay the proliferation of landscape archaeology studies

Constructing Messapian Landscapes Gert-Jan Burgers, 2023-01-16 Over the last three decades archaeologists have progressively embarked on field walking projects all around the Mediterranean basin The aim of most of these projects is to investigate the ancient settlement and landscape dynamics of specific Mediterranean regions They greatly contribute to the new liveliness which characterizes present day classical archaeology not only by introducing new research methods but also and in particular by widening its subject matter to include the history of societies in the margins of the Graeco Roman urban world It is within this recent tradition that the present book has been written the author aims to examine the ancient settlement and societal dynamics of the Brindisi region in the north east of the Salento peninsula The field surveys indicate that during the pre Roman period the regional society was characterized by processes of centralization and urbanization Subsequently from the 3rd century BC onwards it gradually integrated into the Roman orbit Burgers emphasizes an active indigenous role in the successive colonial situations in southern Italy He focuses on the internal dynamics of the local communities and investigates how social strategies manifested themselves especially in external contacts and in the organization of settlement and landscape Urban Landscape Survey in Italy and the Mediterranean Frank Vermeulen,2012 Field survey has been making a major contribution to our understanding of the rural landscapes of the Mediterranean for nearly forty years During that time the techniques used to map ancient settlement patterns have grown in sophistication from being a process of simply identifying sites in the landscape to one which provided nuanced understandings of their layouts chronologies and contexts This has led to a revolution in how archaeologists approach urban sites with survey techniques being used increasingly often to generate a plan of a town site prior to excavation as a way of ensuring that the excavation can be used to address site specific questions in a way that had not been possible before Most recently research has begun to reveal the advantages of integrating a range of different nondestructive techniques on urban sites In combination with exciting new computer based means of data visualization all of this work means that it is now possible to virtually reconstruct a buried town within a relatively short space of time as opposed to the old and destructive excavation centered approach that could take generations Unsurprisingly these advances are starting to make a very important understanding to urbanism in general and the Roman Empire in particular Urban Landscape Survey in Italy and the Mediterranean builds upon all these new developments and is one of the first publications to focus exclusively upon the contribution of survey techniques to our understanding of ancient towns It addresses methodology led inquiry into the nature of urban settlements primarily in Italy but also in Greece Turkey Croatia Portugal and Spain The twenty two papers from leading specialists in the field focus on two underlying themes The first deals with the characterization of urban sites and draws upon a wide range of case studies These range from key protohistoric centers in central and south Italy to towns that epitomize the contradictions of cultural change under Rome such as Paestum Aquinum and Sagalassos to Roman centers such as Teano Suasa and Ammaia The second theme is interurban relationships looking in particular at wider urbanized landscapes in Italy The fascinating selection of recent and ongoing projects presented here significantly moves the limits of our current knowledge about ancient towns The Archaeology of Mediterranean Landscapes: Environmental reconstruction in Mediterranean landscape archaeology ,1999 Mediterranean Island Landscapes Ioannis N. Vogiatzakis,Gloria Pungetti,A.M. Mannion,2008-02-26 Mediterranean islands exhibit many similarities in their biotic ecological physical and environmental characteristics There are also many differences in terms of their human colonization and current anthropogenic pressures This book addresses in three sections these characteristics and examines the major environmental changes that the islands experienced during the Quaternary period The first section provides details on natural and cultural factors which have shaped island landscapes It describes the environmental and cultural changes of the Holocene and their effects on biota as well as on the current human pressures that are now threats to the sustainability of the island communities The second section focuses on the landscapes of the largest islands namely Sicily Sardinia Corsica Cyprus Crete Malta and the Balearics Each island chapter includes a special topic reflecting a particular characteristic of the island Part three presents strategies for action towards sustainability in Mediterranean islands and concludes with a comparison between the largest islands Despite several published books on Mediterranean ecosystems landscapes there is no existing book dealing with Mediterranean islands in a collective manner Students researchers and university lecturers in environmental science geography biology and ecology will find this work invaluable as a cross disciplinary text while planners and politicians will welcome the succinct summaries as background material to planning decisions

Rural Landscapes of the Punic World Peter Alexander René van Dommelen, Carlos Gómez Bellard, Roald F. Docter, 2008 Phoenician and Punic archaeology have long been overlooked by Mediterranean archaeologists who focused their attention on Greek and Roman cultures Although the Punic cities and their rural landscapes are to be found along the southern shores and on the islands of the western Mediterranean basin comprehensive studies of these archaeological remains are virtually non existent This book investigates Punic rural settlement in the western Mediterranean by bringing together and comparing the currently dispersed existing evidence for rural Punic settlement The core of the volume is accordingly made up by a detailed discussion of the archaeological evidence for Punic rural settlement from Sardinia Sicily Ibiza mainland Spain and North Africa Because agriculture and agrarian produce have always been assumed to have played a critical role in the Carthaginian colonial expansion the connections between the various colonial contexts and the local characteristics of rural organisation are explored in detail in order to enhance our understanding of these colonial contexts This in turn provides better insight into Carthaginian colonialism and local Punic rural settlement and their role in the wider Mediterranean context By publishing this evidence and these interpretations in English the authors hope to draw attention to Punic archaeology in general and to these rural studies in particular and to situate them in the wider Mediterranean context of both classical Antiquity and Mediterranean archaeology

Side-by-Side Survey Susan Alcock, John Cherry, 2016-10-02 Twenty years ago John Cherry looked forward to the day when archaeological survey projects working around the Mediterranean region the Frogs round the pond would begin to compare and synthesize the information they had collected He anticipated researchers tackling big questions of interregional scope in new and interesting ways working at a geographical scale considerably larger than that of the individual survey Was his optimism misplaced Despite the extraordinary growth of interest in field survey projects and regional analysis and despite the developments in survey methodology that have been discussed and implemented in the past two decades few scholars have attempted to use survey data in a comparative mode and to answer the broad scale questions confronting social historians In this volume which is the outcome of an advanced Workshop held at the University of Michigan in 2002 a number of prominent archaeologists return to the question of comparability They discuss the potential benefits of working in a comparative format with evidence from many different Mediterranean survey projects and consider the practical problems that present roadblocks to achieving that objective From mapping and manuring to human settlement and demography environment and culture each addresses different questions often with quite different approaches together they offer a range of perspectives on how to put surveys side by side Contributors include Susan E Alcock John Cherry Jack L Davis Peter Attema Martijn van Leusen James C Wright Robin Osborne David Mattingly T J Wilkinson and Richard E Blanton The Archaeology of Mediterranean Landscapes D. J. Mattingly, Graeme Barker, 1999

The Physical Geography of the Mediterranean Jamie Woodward, 2009-05-07 This volume explores the climates landscapes ecosystems and hazards that comprise the Mediterranean world It traces the development of the Mediterranean landscape over very long timescales and examines modern processes and key environmental issues in a wide range of settings The Mediterranean is the only region on Earth where three continents meet and this interaction has produced a very distinctive Physical Geography This book examines the landscapes and processes at the margins of these continents and the distinctive marine environment between them Catastrophic earthquakes explosive volcanic eruptions and devastating storms and floods are intimately bound up within the history and mythology of the Mediterranean world This is a key region for the study of natural hazards because it offers unrivalled access to long records of hazard occurrence and impact through documentary archaeological and geological archives The Mediterranean is also a biodiversity hotspot it has been a meeting place for plants animals and humans from three continents throughout much of its history The Quaternary records of these interactions are more varied and better preserved than in any other part of the world These records have provided important new insights into the tempo of climate landscape and ecosystem change in the Mediterranean region and beyond The region is unique because of the very early and widespread impact of humans in landscape and ecosystem change and the richness of the archaeological and geological archives that chronicle this impact This book examines this history and these interactions and places current environmental issues in long term context Contributors Ramadan Husain Abu Zied Harriet Allen Jacques Blondel Maria Carmen Llasat James Casford Marc Castellnou Andrew Goudie Andrew Harding Angela Hayes Tom Holt Babette Hoogakker Philip Hughes Jos Lelieveld John Lewin Francisco Lloret Francisco Lopez Bermudez Mark Macklin Jean Margat Anne Mather Fr d ric M dail Christophe Morhange Clive Oppenheimer Jean Palutikof Gerassimos Papadopoulos Josep Pi ol David Pyle Jane Reed Neil Roberts Eelco Rohling Iain Stewart Stathis Stiros John Thornes Chronis Tzedakis John Wainwright A Mediterranean Valley Graeme Barker, 1995 Integrating the techniques of archaeology history and geography this book traces the history of human settlement in the Biferno Valley from early prehistory to the present century It also covers the parallel story of landscape development showing that the two have to be understood together It argues for the importance of human settlement rather than climate as is often argued in shaping the Mediterranean landscape This book provides an interdisciplinary study of a restricted region but about an important theme the relationship between people and landscape in the past and what we can learn from it for the future A second volume containing the specialist supporting data collected by the archaeological project is also available entitled The Biferno Valley An Archaeological History of a Mediterranean Landscape the Archaeological and Geomorphological Record This volume edited by Graeme Barker is published in the Leicester Archaeology Monograph series and is available from the School of Archaeological Studies University of Leicester

Unlocking Sacred Landscapes Giorgos Papantoniou, Christine Morris, Athanasios K. Vionis, 2019 Mediterranean Crossroads Sophia Antoniadou, Anthony Pace, 2007 This book contains the thirty papers delivered at the International Archaeological Conference in Athens 10-13 May 2005 These papers are selected essays from the conference which was organised within the framework of the project Crossings Movements of People and Movement of Cultures Changes in the Mediterranean from Ancient to Modern Times a project that had been initiated by the Pierides Foundation All contributors to this volume discuss various issues of Mediterranean archaeology along two broad thematic sessions The first one was devoted to recent advances in theory and in fieldwork that had significantly contributed to our understanding of key themes in Mediterranean archaeology Scholars contributed papers related to issues such as the movement of people and the circulation of objects and ideas throughout the Mediterranean during prehistory and history Specific areas of interest covered cultural diffusion and indigenous development local identity and regional processes population movement object biographies trade and gift exchange islandscapes vs landscapes travel and transport technologies and colonisation The second general theme broadened the conference discussion through an interdisciplinary debate concerning the sociopolitical implications of the postmodern agenda in the present and the impact of this agenda on the study of the Mediterranean past The sessions related to this theme addressed contemporary concerns with the cultural heritage of the Mediterranean as a source of social identities and common heritage Issues concerning the use and abuse of the Mediterranean past and identity in the present the politics of the Mediterranean past and perceptions of how the region's heritage is or should be perceived were central to this section The subject matter of the volume covers long time span from the Neolithic to contemporary times The volume embraces the Eastern Central and Western basins of the Mediterranean The Archaeology of Mediterranean Landscapes Graeme Barker, D.
