ABSTRACT

The study sought to investigate the challenges of youth participation in governance amid commercialised politics in Lukashya Constituency of Northern Province in Zambia. The specific objective was to determine the challenges faced by the youths involved in governance amid Commercialised Politics. To conduct this research, the researchers employed a qualitative approach under phenomenological design. Maximum variation sampling was used to sample 42 participants drawn from the three selected wards of Lukashya Constituency. Individual and focus group interview guides containing open-ended questions were used to collect qualitative data from the participants who were individually interviewed on face-to-face basis, and focus group discussions. Data was analysed thematically, based on themes that emerged from the huge amount of data collected. The study captured expensive nomination and adoption fees, expensive campaigns, exclusive organisational structure and candidate selection and inadequate civic education as key challenges faced by most young people to fully participate in governance. Findings of this study may inform policy and practice. The study recommends the need for the government through the Electoral Commission of Zambia to enhance civic education programs and political literacy in communities, beyond the classroom teaching, reduce adoption and nomination fees to allow more youths to participate in governance issues, for them to have a voice in matters such as; the amendment of the constitution to pave way for a proportional representation system, a measure to increase youth participation in national governance.

INTRODUCTION

Citizen participation in governance is an important element of good governance and a recipe for an inclusive political society. There is an increase in global attention to issues of representation and participation of young people in governance at parliamentary and local government levels, (Masooma and Jimena, 2021), suggesting that young people have considerable potential. Despite this commitment and the growing interest among young people in taking part in the decision-making processes, young people's representation and participation in governance remain very low. Particularly in the National Assembly, the representation of young aged 30 is only 0.6% of Members of

New Perspectives on Pakistan's Political Economy Matthew McCartney,S. Akbar Zaidi,2019-09-19 This volume makes a major intervention in the debates around the nature of the political economy of Pakistan focusing on its contemporary social dynamics This is the first comprehensive academic analysis of Pakistan s political economy after thirty five years and addresses issues of state class and society examining gender the middle classes the media the bazaar economy urban spaces and the new elite The book goes beyond the contemporary obsession with terrorism and extremism political Islam and simple civilian military relations and looks at modern day Pakistan through the lens of varied academic disciplines It not only brings together new work by some emerging scholars but also formulates a new political economy for the country reflecting the contemporary reality and diversification in the social sciences in Pakistan The chapters dynamically and dialectically capture emergent processes and trends in framing Pakistan s political economy and invite scholars to engage with and move beyond these concerns and issues

The Politics of Uneven Development Richard F. Doner,2009-02-09 Why do some middle income countries diversify their economies but fail to upgrade to produce world class products based on local inputs and technological capacities Why have the little tigers of Southeast Asia such as Thailand continued to lag behind the Newly Industrializing Countries of East Asia Richard Doner goes beyond political will by emphasizing institutional capacities and political pressures development challenges vary upgrading poses tough challenges that require robust institutional capacities Such strengths are political in origin They reflect pressures such as security threats and resource constraints which motivate political leaders to focus on efficiency more than clientelist payoffs Such pressures help to explain the political institutions veto players through which leaders operate Doner assesses this argument by analyzing Thai development historically in three sectors sugar textiles and autos and in comparison with both weaker and stronger competitors Philippines Indonesia Taiwan Brazil and South Korea

Governmental Response to Environmental Challenges in Global Perspective Joseph G. Jabbra,O. P. Dwivedi,1998 In our drive to improve human standards of living we have paradoxically paid scant attention to the need for clean air and water the impact of acid rain on agriculture lakes and rivers the effect of pollutants on the ozone layer the safe disposal of hazardous wastes and the relationship between population growth and the environment It seems that every time governments are faced with an apparent choice between economic development and the protection of the environment priority is always given to the former Short term plans dictated by canons of political survival and expediency always seem to take precedence over long term strategies with politicians and decision makers deftly relegating environmental concerns to the realm of rhetoric This book is an effort to better understand the problems faced by our global ecosystems It is also the result of the authors deep commitment to urge both citizens and their leaders the world over to work together for a better protection of the environment so that our planet may be saved for the present and for future generations

African Politics in Comparative

Perspective Goran Hyden, 2005-12-05 This 2006 book reviews fifty years of research on politics in Africa. It synthesizes insights from different scholarly approaches and offers an interpretation of the knowledge accumulated over the years. It discusses how research on African politics relates to the study of politics in other regions. It focuses on such key issues as the legacy of a movement approach to political change, the nature of the state, the economy of a location, the policy deficit, the agrarian question, gender and politics, and ethnicity and conflict. It ends by reviewing what scholars agree upon and what the accumulated knowledge offers as insights for more effective political and policy reforms. This book is for undergraduate and graduate courses in African and Comparative Politics as well as development oriented courses in Political Science and related disciplines. It is also of great relevance to governance and development analysts and practitioners in international organizations.

The Politics of Development Claire McLoughlin, Sameen Ali, Kailing Xie, Nic Cheeseman, David E. Hudson, 2024-03-06 A pathbreaking introduction to the controversial, contested and deeply political topic of development. Written in an engaging and eminently readable style, leading authors invite readers to examine the political dynamics behind some of today's most complex global issues, from rising inequality and social exclusion to the climate crisis. By confronting false assumptions and dispelling myths, the book challenges readers to see politics as not only the obstacle to development but also the means to achieve it. The Politics of Development is grounded in the everyday challenges facing people around the world in accessing the vital resources they need to survive and thrive. It illustrates the unavoidable reality that politics shapes who gets what, when, how, whether in family settings, local communities, national stages or global arenas. It provides readers with a clear roadmap for action, centred on institutions, interests and ideas, to better navigate competing demands and push forward profound change. There are no easy answers to the politics of development; instead, this book provides the analytical tools to understand why getting development right can be so hard and how you can positively respond to some of the critical challenges facing governments, societies and citizens around the world today. This text is essential reading for any student of the politics of development or Development Studies at undergraduate and postgraduate levels. Claire McLoughlin is Associate Professor of Politics and Development, University of Birmingham, UK. Sameen Ali is Assistant Professor of International Development, University of Birmingham, UK. Kailing Xie is Assistant Professor of International Development, University of Birmingham, UK. Nicholas Cheeseman is Professor of Democracy and International Development, University of Birmingham, UK. David Hudson is Professor of Politics and Development, University of Birmingham, UK.

Pockets of Effectiveness and the Politics of State-building and Development in Africa Sam Hickey, 2023-07-03 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY-NC-ND 4.0 International License. It is free to read at Oxford Scholarship Online and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations. Why do certain parts of the state in Africa work so effectively despite operating in difficult governance contexts? How do pockets of bureaucratic effectiveness emerge and become sustained over time And what does this tell us about the prospects for state building and development in Africa Repeated economic and social crises have demanded that development thinkers and policy actors have had to engage with the critical role that states play in delivering development Pockets of Effectiveness and the Politics of State building and Development in Africa shows that politics is the driving factor that shapes how well state agencies perform their roles It deploys a new conceptual framework the power domains approach to explore the shifting fortunes of key state agencies in five countries Ghana Kenya Rwanda Uganda and Zambia over the past three decades Our original research reveals when how and why political rulers decide to build effective state agencies and enable them to deliver certain forms of economic development often through forming strategic coalitions with senior bureaucrats and with international support and also when this support falters and gives way to a politics of survival Comparative analysis identifies two potential trajectories towards state building in Africa each shaped by different configurations of social and political power The book critiques the role that international development agencies have played in mis shaping the state in Africa and suggests a new strategic agenda for building the state capacities required to deliver sustained development at the current juncture The book closes with critical commentaries from two leading scholars in the field to help place our work in context and establish the next steps for research and strategy in this increasingly important area of development theory and practice American History from a Global Perspective David Russo,2000-03-30 This study is the first interpretive text for the study of American exceptionalism and the first overall assessment of geographic political economic social and cultural aspects of the American past written from a global perspective Russo argues that life in the United States can be better understood if it is examined from either a wider perspective the English speaking world the Western Hemisphere Western Civilization or a narrower perspective regional and local variations Even when the Americans were innovative in their multi ethnic and multi racial society in their egalitarian social beliefs in their political democracy their innovations were soon copied by others Therefore Russo argues they are no longer distinctly American Using nations as the basis for fields of study can both reveal and distort the historical record When one considers different perspectives America s uniqueness recedes in importance American culture was a variant of a wider Western culture The American economy was an extension of Western capitalism whether agrarian commercial or industrial American society was a Western society with racial castes and multi ethnic additions to the population American government functioned like other Western governments even with innovative forms Republican then democratic The American past is thus seen to be far less distinctive than previous syntheses have assumed The Political Economy of Economic Reform in the Pacific Ron Duncan,2011-07-01 Over the last several years Vanuatu has become one of the fastest growing economies in the Pacific region driven primarily by tourism construction and aid inflows The achievement of strong economic growth has also occurred on the back of improved economic policy effective fiscal management and improved environment for private sector development While recent gains have been impressive more remains to be done to sustain growth and ensure the benefits are distributed throughout the nation The Government is now on a sound financial footing and is well placed to address key development issues The report discusses options for responding to these needs with a view to helping guide public policy formulation in Vanuatu Global Challenges - Local Responses Daniel Fleming,2006

Governance and Political Adaptation in Fragile States John Idriss Lahai,Karin von Strokirch,Howard Brasted,Helen Ware,2018-07-21 The book examines the various ways that fragile states or states with limited statehood in Africa Asia the Pacific and the Americas have adopted and adapted to the processes of liberal political governance in their quests to address the problem of political fragility It presents the stories of resilience in the political adaptation to Western liberal conceptions of governance In addition to singular or comparative country case studies this project also examines the interplay of culture identities and politics in the creation of people centric governance reforms Towards these ends this volume sheds light on weak states often constructive engagement in the promotion of state governance with a variety of political conditions adverse or otherwise and their ability to remain resilient despite the complex political sociocultural and economic challenges affecting them Through a multidisciplinary approach the authors aim to counter the noticeable shortcomings in the discursive representations of fragility and to contribute a more balanced examination of the narratives about and impact of political adaption and governance in people s lives and experiences Distributive Politics in Developing Countries

Mark Baskin,Michael L. Mezey,2014-10-23 This book explores the increasing use of Constituency Development Funds CDFs in emerging democratic governments in Africa Asia the Caribbean and Oceania CDFs dedicate public money to benefit parliamentary constituencies through allocations and or spending decisions influenced by Members of Parliament MPs The contributors employ the term CDF as a generic term although such funds have a different names such as electoral development funds Papua New Guinea constituency development catalyst funds Tanzania or Member of Parliament Local Area Development Fund India etc In some ways the funds resemble the ad hoc pork barrel policy making employed in the U S Congress for the past 200 years However unlike earmarks CDFs generally become institutionalized in the government s annual budget and are distributed according to different criteria in each country They enable MPs to influence programs in their constituencies that finance education and build bridges roads community centers clinics and schools In this sense a CDF is a politicized form of spending that can help fill in the important gaps in government services in constituencies that have not been addressed in the government s larger comprehensive policy programs This first comprehensive treatment of CDFs in the academic and development literatures emerges from a project at the State University of New York Center for International Development This project has explored CDFs in 19 countries and has developed indicators on their emergence operations and oversight The contributors provide detailed case studies of the emergence and operations of CDFs in Kenya Uganda Jamaica and India as well as an analysis of earmarks in the U S Congress and a broader analysis of the emergence of the funds in Africa They cover the emergence institutionalization and accountability of these funds analyze key issues in their operations and offer provisional conclusions of what the emergence and operations of these funds say about the democratization of politics in developing countries and current approaches to international support for democratic governance in developing countries Intergovernmental Perspective, 1976 Each issue concentrates on a different topic

quality of life In a nutshell this book advocates for reforms in leadership Challenging The Rulers is a challenge to all leaders present and aspiring to adopt this leadership model To ordinary citizens it is a call to take necessary action to elect good leaders
