Pollution Control In East Asia:

Pollution Control in East Asia Michael T. Rock, 2010-09-30 Why do some economies seem to excel at effective pollution management while others miss the mark when responding to deteriorating urban environments These studies of pollution management in East Asia's newly industrialized economies NIEs include successful government responses in Singapore and Taiwan qualified results in China and Indonesia and much more limited success in Thailand and Malaysia In each example Michael Rock considers the starting point of the economy as it began its path toward industrialization in the post World War II period He discusses the relevant historical and political context the pressures placed on the political system from domestic and international sources and the influence of ongoing trends in East Asia for democratization and economic liberalization Rock's text makes it clear that each economy found unique innovative ways to link environmental protection to its own political and economic institutions Thus while public pressure from both home and abroad gave strong impetus to successful programs in Taiwan the development of policy in Singapore involved limited public review and a centralized government led process The result of Rock's scholarship is a book that provides important lessons without being reductionist The book offers insights to apply to pollution management in a diverse range of developing nations but avoids attempts for precise prescriptions or universally appealing normative answers A copublication of Resources for the Future and the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies ISEAS Strategy for Air Pollution Control in East Asia 1996 Environmental Management in Practice Elzbieta Broniewicz, 2011-07-05 In recent years the topic of environmental management has become very common In sustainable development conditions central and local governments much more often notice the need of acting in ways that diminish negative impact on environment Environmental management may take place on many different levels starting from global level e.g. climate changes through national and regional level environmental policy and ending on micro level This publication shows many examples of environmental management The diversity of presented aspects within environmental management and approaching the subject from the perspective of various countries contributes greatly to the development of environmental management field of research East Asia United States International Trade Commission, 1993

Environmental Regimes in Asian Subregions Simon Marsden, 2017-03-31 Informed by international law international relations and environment management scholarship this interdisciplinary analysis of environmental regimes in Asian subregions proposes a new regime for the Himalayas and Tibetan Plateau based on China's cooperation with its south Asian neighbors Asia's Clean Revolution David Angel, Michal Rock, 2017-09-20 The world's environmental future will be determined in significant part by what happens in the rapidly industrialising and urban economies of Asia The sheer scale of urban population and industrial growth in Asia from Indonesia to China and the energy and materials intensive character of the development process constitutes a dark shadow over the region's and indeed the world's environment And yet this challenge is also an opportunity Precisely because so much of the urban industrial investment within developing Asia has yet to take place the opportunity exists to shape a different development future one that is far less energy materials and waste intensive Asia's Clean Revolution examines the prospects for and pathways to such a new trajectory The book lays out a path breaking vision of how developing economies might go beyond environmental regulation and put in place an array of policies and institutions that could integrate environmental industrial and technological goals These findings provide important input for negotiators considering climate change on a global scale The book approaches the challenge of growth and environment in Asia in a novel way by identifying six major transformational dynamics under way in the world today and assessing whether these can be harnessed to the goal of improved environmental performance of industry With a set of specially commissioned chapters from the leading authorities in North America and Asia this ground breaking book is the first to present concrete policy solutions to the looming crisis driven by large scale urban industrial growth in developing Asia
