This book will discuss the various ways in which water is being polluted and the processes to clean and conserve it. The detailed content provided in this book will prove to be useful for environmentalists, engineers, students, researchers, and scientists. William John Hanson, Gerard Groen, 1977 Environmental Stress: Indication, Mitigation and Eco-conservation Mohammad Yunus, Nandita Singh, L.J. de Kok, 2000-07-31 In the present scenario, stresses induced due to global environmental change have indeed become a focal point of researches and study programmes worldwide. Stress caused to plant life has an important consequence to both vegetation as such and all other global cycles which sustain this living earth. Unlike other already existing works, this volume elucidates the plant-pollutant relationship in a manner that defines not only the drastic effects of pollutants on plants but concomitantly highlights the hitherto less focused areas, namely phytoremediation and stress-tolerant bioaesthetic development, thus concentrating more on plant than pollutant. The book would help understand the magnitude of environmental stress in the coming years and may play a formative role in defining future research and policy areas along with providing impetus to development of newer eco-technologies.
