Regulatory Reform And Labor Markets:

Regulatory Reform and Labor Markets James Peoples, 1997-11-30 Regulatory reform represents a major shift in the government's role toward price determination in the transportation and telecommunication industries. The resulting policy emphasizes dependence on market forces to set prices and to encourage efficient production techniques. While extensive research investigates the influence of deregulation on prices, profits, and productivity, the effect on labor markets has not received the same scrutiny. Firms in these industries are of major importance to business operations in other industries because they provide the critical services of transporting goods and transmitting information. This may partly explain such extensive research on the product market aspects of regulatory reform. Examining labor markets in the transportation and telecommunications industries is also highly warranted as historically these industries represented some of the most heavily unionized sectors in the economy. The extent to which regulatory reform has encouraged product market competition may not necessarily result in the same degree of competition across industries. Regulatory Reform and Labor Markets debates the notion that research on regulatory reform and labor markets should develop within the framework of the competitive model. This is achieved by presenting diverging views on wage and employment determination in distinctly different deregulated industries.

Implementing Regulatory Reform: Building the Case Through Results Proceedings of the Meeting of the Group on Regulatory Policy, OECD, Paris, December 2007 OECD, 2008-08-01 This report discusses some of the major challenges for implementing regulatory reform from a political perspective. It draws on the experience and evidence from OECD countries when building the case through results and developing strategies for Reforming the Labor Market in a Liberalized Economy Gustavo Márquez, 1995. In addition, countries must produce a transparent atmosphere that depoliticizes contract disputes and negotiations Finally they must reform and strengthen institutions responsible for labor policies
