Reinventing Aurobindo Ghose Bidyut Chakrabarty, 2025-06-30 Aurobindo Ghose's ideological vision challenges traditional interpretations that divide his thought into distinct political and spiritual phases. The common belief that his engagement in the nationalist movement (1893-1910) gave way to a retreat into spirituality in Pondicherry oversimplifies the complexity of his intellectual evolution. This division often found in historiography suggests a shift from nationalism to spirituality but fails to recognise the underlying continuity in Aurobindo's ideas. A closer examination reveals a seamless development that transcends such a simplistic bifurcation. Aurobindo's nationalism was not solely political; it was deeply connected to his reverence for India's ancient intellectual traditions. He opposed the Westernisation of India, seeing it as a force that disconnected Indians from their cultural heritage. The blind imitation of Western values in his view betrayed India's spiritual and philosophical legacy. This commitment to intellectual revival was evident throughout his early career, during which he sought to navigate the colonial system even attempting to secure a position within the British administration. Ultimately, Aurobindo rejected this path and aligned himself with the nationalist movement. Alongside leaders like Lal Bal and Pal, he redefined Indian nationalism, advocating for direct resistance to colonial rule and championing mass mobilisation that included all castes, religions, and genders. His vision was not a transition from politics to spirituality but an integrated approach where nationalism and spirituality were inextricably linked in the pursuit of India's freedom and cultural renaissance.

[] With Design: Reinventing Design Modes Gerhard Bruyns, Huaxin Wei, 2022-11-05 This collection stems from the International Association of Societies of Design Research (IASDR) congress in 2021, promoting the research of design in its many fields of application. Today's design finds itself at a critical moment where the conventional modes of doing thinking and application are increasingly challenged by the troubled ideology of globalisation, climate change, migration patterns, and the rapid restructuring of locally driven manufacturing sectors. The volume presents a selection of papers on the state of the art design research work. As rapid technological development has been pushing and breaking new ground in society, the broad field of design is facing many unprecedented changes. In combination with the environmental, cultural, technological, and crucially pandemic transitions, design at large is called to fundamentally alter its modes of practice. Beyond the conventional models of conducting research or developing solutions to wicked problems, the recoupling of design with different modes should be seen as an expression to embrace other capacities of thinking, criticisms, and productions. This selection of proceedings papers delivers the latest insights into design from a multitude of perspectives as reflected in the eight thematic modes of the congress: i.e. social, making, business, critical, historical, projective, impact, pandemic, and alternative, with design modes. The book benefits design researchers from both academia and industry who are interested in the latest design research results as well as in innovative design research methods. In presenting an interesting corpus of design case studies as well as studies of design impact, this comprehensive collection is of relevance to design theorists and students as well as scholars in related fields seeking to understand how design plays a critical role in their respective domains Flipping Leadership Doesn't Mean Reinventing the Wheel Peter M. Medieval French Emma Campbell, 2023-09-09 How can untranslatability help us to think about the historical as well as the cultural and linguistic dimensions of translation For the past two centuries theoretical debates about translation have responded to the idea that translation overcomes linguistic and cultural incommensurability while never inscribing full equivalence More recently untranslatability has been foregrounded in projects at the intersections between translation studies and other disciplines notably philosophy and comparative literature The critical turn to untranslatability re-emphasizes the importance of translation's negotiation with foreignness or difference and prompts further reflection on how that might be understood historically philosophically and ethically If translation never replicates a source exactly what does it mean to communicate some elements and not others What or who determines what is translatable or what can or cannot be recontextualized What linguistic political cultural or historical factors condition such determinations Central to these questions is the way translation negotiates with and inscribes asymmetries among languages and cultures operations that are inevitably ethical and political as well as linguistic This book explores how approaching questions of translatability and untranslatability through premodern texts and languages can inform broader interdisciplinary conversations about translation as a concept and a practice Working with case studies drawn from the francophone cultures of Flanders England and northern France it explores how medieval texts challenge modern definitions of language text and translation and in so doing how such texts can open sites of variance and non-identity within what later became the hegemonic global languages we know today
