looking deeply into your eyes and repeating affirmations is the most effective method I've found for learning to love yourself and see the world as a safe and loving place I have been teaching people how to do mirror work for as long as I have been teaching affirmations The most powerful affirmations are those you say out loud when you are in front of your mirror The mirror reflects back to you the feelings you have about yourself As you learn to do mirror work you will become much more aware of the words you say and the things you do You will learn to take care of yourself on a deeper level than you have done before The more you use mirrors for complimenting yourself approving of yourself and supporting yourself during difficult times the deeper and more enjoyable your relationship with yourself will become Love Louise Hay Thrive on Stress Jan Sutton, 2000 Not all stress is bad Readers can discover how to conquer negative stress and use positive pressure to boost self esteem and confidence Supported by numerous illustrations activities and comprehensive case studies this fascinating book could quite literally transform their lives Treating Child-Abusive Families Jeffrey A. Kelly, 2013-11-21 During the past ten years the problem of child abuse has been the subject of increased attention both in the professional community and among the general public The reasons for this widespread recognition are clear First professionals of many disciplines deal with child abusive families and do so in a variety of ways Physicians hospital staff and teachers are often the first to assess a child as the victim of abuse social workers and child protective personnel investigate cases of suspected abuse court and legal authorities make determinations concerning the needs of an abused child and mental health professionals including psychologists social workers and family counselors often have responsibility for treating abusive families Few clinical problems have received this kind of widespread interdisciplinary recognition and given the nature and seriousness of child abusive behavior few problems receive such intensive attention within each profession's literature A second factor responsible for increased study of child abuse is the fact that violence directed toward children is probably the most extreme form of family dysfunction seen by counselors therapists and other practitioners While other types of child management and anger control problems occur far more frequently the consequences of child abusive behavior are much more serious than the consequences of other problems seen in child or family clinics It has been estimated that as many as 550 000 children are the targets of parental abuse in the country each year Helfer Kemper 1976
