Moving on From Crime and Substance Use Anne Robinson, Paula Hamilton, 2016-09-21 Desistance is one of the big news stories of the criminological world Research suggests that as offenders turn their backs on crime they often change their identities as well as their behaviour Yet we know much less about how reforming or transforming identity might be affected by gender age or ethnicity This book focuses on diversity and showcases research from a wide range of authors in the field It considers the similarities and differences between desisting from crime and recovering from addiction Taking the desistance and recovery debates in unfamiliar directions it examines the experiences of change for individuals seeking healthier and more successful futures Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations for 1999 United States. Game Love Jessica Enevold, Esther MacCallum-Stewart, 2015-01-09 What does love have to do with gaming As games have grown in complexity they have increasingly included narratives that seek to engage players with love in a variety of ways While media attention often focuses on violent emotions and behavior in gaming love has always been central to the experience We love to play games we have titles that we love and sometimes we love too much or love terrible games for their shortcomings Love in gaming is rather like love in life often complicated and frustrating but also exciting and gratifying This collection of fresh essays explores the meaning and role of love in gaming describing a number of ways from coding to cosplay in which love can be expressed in for and around games Investigating how gaming involves love is also key to understanding the growing importance of games and gamers as cultural markers

Coal Mines Vicky Aram, 2012-10-25 Coal Mines Confessions and Dance Halls with Return to the North and The Theatre of Self This Autobiography is now a trilogy By Vicky Aram Vicky Aram was born into the middle of the Great Depression in the 1930s in a close knit mining district in England s North East In her print debut Vicky escorts us on her journey from an atypically bohemian Northern Catholic environment to the Mayfair clubs of the 1970s via self discovery as an illustrator and fashionista Vicky s father a dancer theatre manager and sometime optician and stylish mother clad in veiled hats feathers and fur nurtured her creativity with piano lessons which soon led to her recitals on the church organ As the 1950s dawned Vicky travelled to Sunderland to attend Art College and inevitably to learn to smoke with style Soon came the inevitable move south to London lodging at the YWCA in Bloomsbury with full board for 3 a week She fell in with the creative set and landed a job as a fashion illustrator illuminating pieces for magazines and the Daily Telegraph attending all the couture shows and becoming a part of the fabric of Soho Always open to new adventures Vicky met the extraordinary person who became her husband in the late 1950s The freedom they afforded each other ensured that they were never thwarted in their ambition be it his career in architecture or her burgeoning musical gifts Vicky designed a collection for Harvey Nichols 21 boutique his various homes featured in colour supplement style spreads Following a brief interlude in Yorkshire and the blessing of three children they returned to London in time for the nascent 1970s and a change of direction. A chance meeting with an Australian musician opened the door to Vicky establishing herself as a singer and pianist. With a tendency towards jazz, blues and Motown, Vicky spent the next two decades serenading London's elite and sometimes less elite in Mayfair clubs, West End hotels, restaurants and night spots. Vicky truly is the Nightjar described in these pages: a bird that sings by night and sleeps by day, although family life and keeping a busy home left little time for rest. The pivotal moment in this book of sketches comes in September 1977. One night as the summer nears its end, Vicky the singer at Morton's club in Berkeley Square finds herself embroiled in one of the 20th Century's most tragic, shocking motor accidents. In the 1980s, Vicky combines her musical engagements with a little housekeeping and the pleasure of raising her beautiful family. A long residency at The Canteen sees her mixing with the cream of the international jazz and blues scene, including Buddy Tate, Zoot Money, Chet Baker, Carol Grimes, Esther Phillips, Howard McGhee, Eric Burdon. Al her mother looked like Coco Chanel while Marc Bolan lay serene and silent, his brilliant green satin jacket catching the light from the slow dawn. This slim volume leaves one wanting to know more, to ask a hundred questions, at the same time it transports you to times of opportunity and notoriety when creativity abounded and Vicky realised her destiny. She tells us that the journey is the thrill and you must never arrive, yet she allows us to share glimpses of that journey, one of definite accomplishment, love and happiness. Education and Training in Europe Giorgio Brunello, Pietro Garibaldi, Etienne Wasmer, 2007-05-17. While Europe is certainly one of the richest and most educated areas of the world, some of the challenges faced by the old continent are staggering: low economic growth, structural difficulties in the labour market and increasing international competition. Politicians and policymakers may advocate different means of overcoming the potential economic decline of Europe, but most agree that Europe needs to strengthen human capital, its ultimate competitive advantage in the world economy. This book looks at the accumulation of human capital from two perspectives: first through formal education and then professional training. It provides a useful summary of the key characteristics of education and training in Europe and also asks key questions about the fundamental problems with the current educational and training systems. More importantly, the book goes on to discuss which policies are necessary to make existing education and training systems more efficient while also making higher skills available to a wider range of people. Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, 1984. Couple-Based Interventions for Military and Veteran Families Douglas K.
