Looking High And Low Art And Cultural Identity:

Looking High and Low Brenda Jo Bright, Elizabeth Bakewell, 1995-11 Looking High and Low attempts to answer these questions and the broader question What is art by bringing together a collection of challenging essays on the meaning of art in cultural context and on the ways that our understandings of art and aesthetics have been influenced by social process and cultural values Chicano and Chicana Art Jennifer A. González, C. Ondine Chavoya, Chon Noriega, Terezita Romo, 2019-01-15 This anthology provides an overview of the history and theory of Chicano art from the 1960s to the present emphasizing the debates and vocabularies that have played key roles in its conceptualization In Chicano and Chicana Art which includes many of Chicano art's landmark and foundational texts and manifestos artists curators and cultural critics trace the development of Chicano art from its early role in the Chicano civil rights movement to its mainstream acceptance in American art institutions Throughout this teaching oriented volume they address a number of themes including the politics of border life public art practices such as posters and murals and feminist and queer artists' figurations of Chicano bodies They also chart the multiple cultural and artistic influences from American graffiti and Mexican pre-Columbian spirituality to pop art and modernism that have informed Chicano art's practice Contributors Carlos Almaraz David Avalos Judith F. A New Deal for Native Art Jennifer McLerran, 2022-08-16 As the Great Depression touched every corner of America the New Deal promoted indigenous arts and crafts as a means of bootstrapping Native American peoples But New Deal administrators' romanticization of indigenous artists predisposed them to favor pre-industrial forms rather than art that responded to contemporary markets In A New Deal for Native Art Jennifer McLerran reveals how positioning the native artist as a pre-modern Other served the goals of New Deal programs and how this sometimes worked at cross purposes with promoting native self-sufficiency She describes federal policies of the 1930s and early 1940s that sought to generate an upscale market for Native American arts and crafts And by unraveling the complex ways in which commodification was negotiated and the roles that producers consumers and New Deal administrators played in that process she sheds new light on native art's commodity status and the artist's position as colonial subject In this first book to address the ways in which New Deal Indian policy specifically advanced commodification and colonization McLerran reviews its multi-pronged effort to improve the market for Indian art through the

Indian Arts and Crafts Board arts and crafts cooperatives murals museum exhibits and Civilian Conservation Corps projects Presenting nationwide case studies that demonstrate transcultural dynamics of production and reception she argues for viewing Indian art as a commodity as part of the national economy and as part of national political trends and reform efforts McLerran marks the contributions of key individuals from John Collier and Rene d Harnoncourt to Navajo artist Gerald Nailor whose mural in the Navajo Nation Council House conveyed distinctly different messages to outsiders and tribal members Featuring dozens of illustrations A New Deal for Native Art offers a new look at the complexities of folk art revivals as it opens a new window on the Indian New Deal

Drawing Back Culture Ann M. Tweedie, 2015-08-17 The Makah Indians of Washington State briefly in the national spotlight when they resumed their ancient whaling traditions in 1999 have begun a process that will eventually lead to the repatriation of objects held by museums and federal agencies nationwide Drawing Back Culture describes the early stages of the tribe's implementation of what some consider to be the most important piece of cultural policy legislation in the history of the United States the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act NAGPRA NAGPRA was passed by Congress in 1990 to give Native people a mechanism through which they could reclaim specific objects of importance to the tribe Because NAGPRA definitions were intended for widespread applicability each tribe must negotiate a fit between these definitions and their own material culture The broad range of viewpoints within any given tribal community creates internal negotiations over NAGPRA surrounding the identification and eventual return of such objects Negotiations also arise concerning the nature of ownership At the heart of this ongoing struggle are themes relevant to indigenous studies worldwide the central role of material culture in cultural revitalization movements concerns with intellectual property rights and self representation and the trend towards professional cultural resource management among indigenous peoples The conception of ownership lies at the heart of the Makahs struggle to implement NAGPRA Tweedie explores their historical patterns of ownership and demonstrates the challenges of implementing legislation which presumes a concept of communal ownership foreign to the Makahs highly developed and historically documented patterns of personal ownership of both material culture and intellectual property Drawing Back Culture explores how NAGPRA implementation has been working at the tribal level from the perspective of a tribe struggling to fit the provisions of the law with its own sense of history ownership and the drive for cultural renewal

Exhibiting Mestizaje Karen Mary Davalos, 2001 In this authoritative study Davalos challenges the sometimes hidden sometimes blatant assumptions that underlie the practice of creating museum exhibits and asks what happens when people of Mexican American descent put themselves in command of the collection display and interpretation of their cultural products Advancing a Chicana feminist interpretation Davalos carefully explores both the history of nineteenth and twentieth century museum practices and the more recent phenomenon of physically locating Mestizo Chicano art within insider spaces such as ethnically or racially specific cultural institutions and alternative galleries Just as public museums instruct visitors about who does and who does not belong to a nation's cultural legacy Davalos makes clear that exhibitions in so called minority museums are likewise shaped by notions of difference and nationalism and by the politics of identity and race Davalos pays particular attention to museum and cultural centers in major Mexican diaspora communities including the Mexican Fine Arts Museum in Chicago and Galeria de la Raza in San Francisco Throughout she critically examines Chicano Mexican Mestizo and Mexican American subjectivities as they are expressed in curatorial decisions and practices in educational materials and catalog texts and in the performances and other public events that accompany museum exhibits That practice what Davalos calls exhibiting mestizaje produces complex representations of Mexican Americans Davalos s analysis shows clearly that the value of mestizaje and diaspora lies in their ability to create a cultural poetics from fluidity and conflict Davalos accomplishes the difficult task of discussing Chicano art as both aesthetic and political work She does not reduce artistic expression to political propaganda but neither does she examine aesthetic issues in isolation from the social processes that give them shape and meaning

The Archaeology of Art in the American Southwest Marit K. Munson, 2011-04-16 Archaeologists seldom study ancient art even though art is fundamental to the human experience The Archaeology of Art in the American Southwest argues that archaeologists should study ancient artifacts as artwork as applying the term art to the past raises new questions about artists audiences and the works of art themselves Munson proposes that studies of ancient artwork be based on standard archaeological approaches to material culture framed by theoretical insights of disciplines such as art history visual studies and psychology Using examples drawn from the American Southwest The Archaeology of Art in the American Southwest discusses artistic practice in ancestral Pueblo and Mimbres ceramics and the implications of context and accessibility for the audiences of painted murals and rock art Studies of Hohokam figurines and rock art illustrate methods for studying ancient images while the aesthetics of ancient art are suggested by work on ceramics and kivas from Chaco Canyon This book will be of interest to archaeologists working in the Southwest who want to broaden their perspective on the past It will also appeal to archaeologists in other parts of the world and to anthropologists art historians and those who are intrigued by the material world aesthetics and the visual

Rank Ladies M. Alison Kibler, 2005-10-12 A disrobing acrobat a female Hamlet and a tuba playing labor activist all these women come to life in Rank Ladies In this comprehensive study of women in vaudeville Alison

Kibler reveals how female performers patrons and workers shaped the rise and fall of the most popular live entertainment at the turn of the century Kibler focuses on the role of gender in struggles over whether high or low culture would reign in vaudeville examining women s performances and careers in vaudeville their status in the expanding vaudeville audience and their activity in the vaudevillians labor union Respectable women were a key to vaudeville s success she says as entrepreneurs drew women into audiences that had previously been dominated by working class men and recruited female artists as performers But although theater managers publicly celebrated the cultural uplift of vaudeville and its popularity among women in reality their houses were often hostile both to female performers and to female patrons and home to women who challenged conventional understandings of respectable behavior Once a sign of vaudeville s refinement Kibler says women became associated with the decay of vaudeville and were implicated in broader attacks on mass culture as well
