Gender and Nation in Meiji Japan Jason G. Karlin,2014-04-30 Gender and Nation in Meiji Japan is a historical analysis of the discourses of nostalgia in late nineteenth and early twentieth century Japan Through an analysis of the experience of rapid social change in Japan s modernization it argues that fads ry k and the desires they express are central to understanding Japanese modernity conceptions of gender and discourses of nationalism In doing so the author uncovers the myth of eternal return that lurks below the surface of Japanese history as an expression of the desire to find meaning amid the chaos and alienation of modern times The Meiji period 1868 1912 was one of rapid change that hastened the process of forgetting The state s aggressive program of modernization required the repression of history and memory However repression merely produced new forms of desire seeking a return to the past with the result that competing or alternative conceptions of the nation haunted the history of modern Japan Rooted in the belief that the nation was a natural and organic entity that predated the rational modern state such conceptions often were responses to modernity that envisioned the nation in opposition to the modern state What these visions of the nation shared was the ironic desire to overcome the modern condition by seeking the timeless past While the condition of their repression was often linked to the modernizing policies of the Meiji state the means for imagining the nation in opposition to the state required the construction of new symbols that claimed the authority of history and appealed to a rearticulated tradition Through the idiom of gender and nation new reified representations of continuity timelessness and history were fashioned to compensate for the unmooring of inherited practices from the shared locales of everyday life This book examines the intellectual social and cultural factors that contributed to the rapid spread of Western tastes and styles along with the backlash against Westernization that was expressed as a longing for the past By focusing on the expressions of these desires in popular culture and media texts it reveals how the conflation of mother countryside everyday life and history structured representations to naturalize ideologies of gender and nationalism
