

Evaluating social innovations using social experiments/randomized control trials

Author: Aleksandrs Cepilovs*

Introduction

This paper aims at discussing the applicability of experimental methods, and specifically randomized controlled trials (RCT) in evaluating social innovation and innovation in public sector organisations. The reasons for addressing the question of applicability of experimental evaluation methods in context of public sector or social innovation are manifold: first of all, in the recent years social innovation and innovation in the public sector have come to the forefront of the debate in public policy-making as well as innovation research; secondly, in the recent call for papers for a panel on social innovation at one of the conferences panel chairs encouraged submissions of experimental studies, arguing that currently there are very few of those; lastly, there arguably exists a gap in methods for evaluation of both public sector and social innovation and therefore experimental methods (including RCTs) are viewed as one of the possible approaches to evaluation.

Social innovation is high on the agenda of governments around the world and particularly so in Europe, where the concept of social innovation can be encountered in policy documents ranging from social policy to innovation policy and beyond. The reasons for such popularity of the concept are simple. On the one hand there are pressing societal challenges, such as ageing populations, public health-related challenges (obesity, depressions etc.) or environmental challenges. Public sector plays a central role in resolving most if not all social challenges, as some of those are related to the so-called economic externalities, for which businesses are not responsible thus shifting the burden to the domain of governments. On the other hand resolving societal challenges puts additional pressure on governments' finances. Given the pressures on both demand and supply sides, governments need to seek solutions to act upon existing challenges with fewer resources. The concept of social innovation therefore is proposed as one of the approaches to effectively tackle the pressing challenges and address the societal needs. Particularly actively the concept of social innovation has been discussed and also applied in practice in countries where involvement of the private and the third sector in provision of social and welfare services has comparatively long history (e.g. the UK, Netherlands, Australia and New Zealand). The National Endowment for Science, Technology and Arts (NESTA) in the UK under the guidance of its CEO and, perhaps, one of the most prominent proponents of social innovation, Geoff Mulgan, has been actively involved in studying social innovation in its

Methods For Experimental Social Innovation:

Methods for Experimental Social Innovation George William Fairweather, 1967 Experimental Methods for Social Policy Research George W. Fairweather, Louis G. Tornatzky, 2013-10-22 Experimental Methods for Social Policy Research explains how experimental methods can be used in social policy research to help solve contemporary human problems and to preserve and improve the world's physical and social climates This book argues that scientists can make a major contribution to the solution of social problems by aiding the society in incorporating scientific methods into the social decision making process Two principal methods required for solving social problems are highlighted methods for evaluating social models aimed at solving particular problems and methods for disseminating those models that are beneficial to the state the region and the nation This book is comprised of 14 chapters and begins with the argument that contemporary social policy decision making is inadequate for the late 20th and 21st centuries It then defines the basic ingredients for an adequate social policy decision making apparatus and explains how it can be accomplished The next chapter outlines the basic parameters of social models and dissemination processes from a conceptual point of view The remaining chapters describe general experimental procedures from the inception of the ideas to the implementation of social models found to be beneficial The final chapter is reserved for a discussion of a proposed center for experimental social innovation that would provide research and training This monograph will be a valuable resource for social scientists and researchers as well as social policymakers public officials and citizens who are committed to the improvement of living conditions for all members of society Encyclopedia of Social Innovation Jürgen Howaldt, Christoph Kaletka, 2023-10-06 This invaluable Encyclopedia presents an interdisciplinary and comprehensive overview of the field of social innovation providing an insightful view into potential future developments both practically and theoretically This title contains one or more Open Access chapters Social Innovation A. Nicholls, A. Murdock, 2011-12-16 Focusing on social innovation broadly conceived in the context of social entrepreneurship and social enterprise in their global context this book is organised to address three of the most important themes in social innovation strategies and logics performance measurement and governance and finally sustainability and the environment Theoretical and Practical Approaches to Social Innovation Weerakoon, Chamindika, McMurray, Adela, 2020-12-25 Social innovation is identified as a mechanism response to burning social challenges and the evolution of hybrid organizations such as social enterprises As a result there is an overwhelming growing interest among researchers policymakers and practitioners to know more about the significant concept of social innovation Despite this significance it is often argued that the meaning of social innovation is ambiguous and vague with theory lagging social innovation practice as the field is nascent emerging and remains underdeveloped This may impede the research endeavors of conceptualizing and establishing its socio economic underpinnings and the legitimization of the field Theoretical and Practical Approaches to Social Innovation illuminates and consolidates multiple views of social innovation theory

research and practice which to date have not been presented in one publication The book provides an in depth theoretical and practical understanding coupled with an assessment of the current research in multidisciplinary perspectives complemented by case studies representing each knowledge cluster in social innovation research In this unique way this book links theory to practice demonstrating praxis While highlighting topics such as social enterprise urban studies management ecological resilience and social policy and networks this book is ideal for students academics practitioners researchers and entrepreneurs looking to expand their knowledge skills and passion and to sustainably pursue their social missions to bring about real social change that can transform communities and ignite innovative approaches to solving social challenges

Creating Economic Space for Social Innovation Alex Nicholls,Rafael Ziegler,2019-12-12 This book draws upon economic and sociological theory to provide a comprehensive discussion of economic space for social innovation addressing especially marginalized groups and the long term projects programmes and policies that have emerged and evolved within and across European states It approaches the explanatory and normative questions raised by this topic via a novel approach the Extended Social Grid Model ESGM Taking inspiration from the fields of economic sociology and ethics this model shows that social innovation processes must be structural and require change in power relations if marginalization is to be effectively dealt with via social innovation Part I of the book sets out the ESGM including an exposition on the model along with background chapters on innovation power and marginalization ethics and social innovation and empirical methods Part II explores the model with a focus on social innovation trajectories of social housing drinking water provision employment education and food provision It also explores the operationalization of the model with a view to agency and empowerment as well as social innovation policy in Europe and the use of social impact bonds as a tool for financing social innovation Part III revisits the ESGM and considers the explanatory adequacy and fruitfulness of the model for innovation research and for theorizing social innovation addressing questions on the role and limitations of participation in social innovation for the marginalized the role of capital for creating economic space for capabilities and how we can approach the social impact of social innovation This collection of essays presents a diverse range of perspectives on understanding and addressing the key issue of marginalization and offers key recommendations for policy makers engaging with social innovation across the European Union and beyond

Technology and Innovation for Social Change Satyajit Majumdar,Samapti Guha,Nadiya Marakkath,2014-12-04 Tension exists between technologists and social thinkers because of the impact technology and innovation have on social values and norms which is often viewed as damaging to the cultural fabric of a nation or society Since the global business environment is the context in which implementation of technology and innovation takes place it is widely accepted as the major reason for such conflicts In this backdrop this edited book integrates independent research from across the globe It deals with the nature and significance of technology innovation and social change as well as the relationships between them and discusses the significance of social entrepreneurship from social innovation and technology perspectives Research areas covered are related to the development and deployment of technology innovation and knowledge in social change capabilities of institutions models role of government and corporate social responsibility and community involvement Multiple aspects of social change are discussed in the context of India Mexico Thailand Cambodia Laos Vietnam Ethiopia Nigeria and other African countries But society does not silently accept technologically enforced changes sometimes technology is seen as an enemy of inclusive growth and for many economic development is an anti thesis of social change Selected case studies on sector specific technologies such as the use of genetically modified seeds in agriculture which has impacted the market and society are critically analyzed to develop insights into the adoption of technology and its impact At the same time it examines policy related issues without any bias in favor of or against a specific technology

Digital Social Innovation Chiara Certomà, 2021-08-21 This book engages the reader in exploring the relationships between digital social innovation initiatives and the city It delivers a fresh accessible and case based discussion on the emergence of digitally enabled social innovation practices in Europe that are redesigning the urban space and challenging the consolidated urban governance processes By adopting a critical geography perspective this ground breaking analysis of digital social innovation provides the reader with an accessible overview of the way in which urban reproductive processes mobilise the physical and the virtual dimensions of the city and generate distinctive spatial configurations Together with novel urban narratives and socio technical imaginaries these support the existing geometries of power or construct new ones The author clearly describes contemporary cities as the new battlegrounds for controlling the digital sphere shaped by the interplay between digital capitalism and resistance movements In light of grassroots initiatives advanced by cyber activists e makers and hackers the book unveils the socio political and cultural underpinnings of the revolution produced by the digital social innovations in the city and the socio technological regimes supporting them This author successfully sheds new critical light on traditional innovation studies exploring the debate on digital innovation through the lens of social and cultural geography providing an invaluable reference for those working in this field

Handbook on Alternative Theories of Innovation Godin, Benoît, Gaglio, Gérald, Vinck, Dominique, 2021-10-12 This insightful Handbook scrutinizes alternative concepts and approaches to the dominant economic or industrial theories of innovation Providing an assessment of these alternatives it questions the absence of these neglected types of innovation and suggests diverse theories

New Frontiers in Social Innovation Research Alex Nicholls, Julie Simon, Madeleine Gabriel, Christopher Whelan, 2015-09-18 This book is open access under a CC BY license Interest in social innovation continues to rise from governments setting up social innovation labs to large corporations developing social innovation strategies Yet theory lags behind practice and this hampers our ability to understand social innovation and make the most of its potential This collection brings together work by leading social innovation researchers globally exploring the practice and process of researching social innovation its nature and effects Combining theoretical chapters and empirical studies it shows how social innovation is blurring traditional boundaries between the market the state and civil society thereby developing new forms of services relationships and collaborations It takes a critical perspective analyzing potential downsides of social innovation that often remain unexplored or are glossed over yet concludes with a powerful vision of the potential for social innovation to transform society It aims to be a valuable resource for students and researchers as well as policymakers and others supporting and leading social innovation
