Religious Pluralism A Metaphorical Approach:

Religious Pluralism, 2000 Religious Pluralism stems from a series of Gifford Research Fellowship lectures A stipulation of these lectures is that they be public popular addressed to the intelligent lay person not just the specialist Religious Pluralism is not written from the stance of any particular faith It addresses issues that might concern anyone who thinks about religion particularly the individual in search of or interested in choosing a faith We live in a religiously plural world one in which Buddhism Christianity Hinduism Islam Judaism Sikhism Taoism etc variously picture the nature purpose of human existence Which religious account if any should we accept on what ground Is it legitimate to construct a world view using material from several faiths Using the image of a hall of mirrors to symbolize our new multi religious consciousness Religious Pluralism A Metaphorical Approach considers how the individual might answer such challenging questions Chris Arthur received a PhD from the University of Edinburgh where he took a First Class Honours degree in Religious Studies In 1984 he was awarded the Gifford Research Fellowship at the University of St Andrews At the University of Wales he teaches courses in Buddhism Religion the Media Methodology

Process and Pluralism Zhihe Wang, 2013-05-02 This book offers a uniquely process relational oriented Chinese approach to inter religious dialogue called Chinese Harmonism The key features of Chinese harmonism are peaceful co existence mutual transformation and openness to change As developed with help from Whiteheadian process thought Chinese harmonism provides a middle way between particularism and universalism showing how diversity can exist within unity Chinese harmonism is open to similarities among religions but it also emphasizes that differences among religions can be complementary rather than contradictory Thus Chinese harmonism implies an attitude of respect for others and a willingness to learn from others without reducing the other to one's own identity that is to sameness By emphasizing the possibility of complementariness a process oriented Chinese harmonism avoids a dichotomy between universalism and particularism represented respectively by John Hick and S Mark Heim and will make room for a genuine openness and do justice to the culturally and religiously other day Business, Economy and Commerce in the Name of God Ednan Aslan, 2025-01-31 Throughout history religious communities have left an indelible mark on society's spiritual life, moral compass and economic landscape. To fulfill their divine mission, these communities need resources to carry out their religious and God-centered activities. Economic engagement has always been and remains an integral part of their worship. In an increasingly globalized world where the professional marketing of religion is on the rise, these communities face growing pressure to present their beliefs and values in a polished professional manner. This is critical to maintaining or even expanding their influence in a global world. As a result, religious communities today often operate like businesses, engaging in diverse sectors of the economy ranging from pilgrimages and the halal market to the fashion industry. This book explores the complex relationship between business and religion. It provides a historical overview, examines contemporary examples, and offers a nuanced analysis of the risks and opportunities involved. It also explores the theological implications of doing business in the name of God. Martin Luther and Buddhism Paul S. Chung, 2002 This book is designed to bring Martin Luther into dialogue with Asian theology and spirituality, especially that of Mahayana Buddhism and its interpretation of dukkha (suffering), in which an attempt is made to construct a theological aesthetics of divine suffering and human suffering, leading to creative insights for interfaith dialogue.

Democracy and Human Rights in Multicultural Societies Matthias Koenig, 2017-07-05 Published in association with UNESCO, Democracy and Human Rights in Multicultural Societies examines the political governance of cultural diversity, specifically how public policy making has dealt with the claims for cultural recognition that have increasingly been expressed by ethno-national movements, language groups, religious minorities, indigenous peoples, and migrant communities. Its principle aim is to understand, explain, and assess public policy responses to ethnic, linguistic, and religious diversity. Adopting interdisciplinary perspectives from comparative social sciences, the contributors address the conditions, forms, and consequences of democratic and human rights-based governance of multi-ethnic, multi-lingual, and multi-faith societies. The Library Journal, 2000 Includes beginning Sept 15 1954 and on the 15th of each month Sept-May a special section School library journal ISSN 0000 0035 called Junior libraries 1954-May 1961 Also issued separately.
