The Dawn of Christian Art in Panel Paintings and Icons Thomas F. Mathews, Norman E. Muller, 2017-02-01 Staking out new territory in the history of art this book presents a compelling argument for a lost link between the panel painting tradition of Greek antiquity and Christian paintings of Byzantium and the Renaissance While art historians place the origin of icons in the seventh century Thomas F Mathews finds strong evidence as early as the second century in the texts of Irenaeus and the Acts of John that describe private Christian worship In closely studying an obscure set of sixty neglected panel paintings from Egypt in Roman times the author explains how these paintings of the Egyptian gods offer the missing link in the long history of religious painting Christian panel paintings and icons are for the first time placed in a continuum with the pagan paintings that preceded them sharing elements of iconography technology and religious usages as votive offerings Exciting discoveries punctuate the narrative the technology of the triptych enormously popular in Europe traced by the authors to the construction of Egyptian portable shrines such as the Isis and Serapis of the J Paul Getty Museum the discovery that the egg tempera painting medium usually credited to Renaissance artist Cimabue has been identified in Egyptian panels a millennium earlier and the reconstruction of a ring of icons on the chancel of Saint Sophia in Istanbul This book will be a vital addition to the fields of Egyptian Graeco Roman and late antique art history and more generally to the history of painting

Religious Painting Juan José Lahuerta, 2015 Religious subject matter is not central in 20th century art One might therefore suspect that for the avantgarde the Spanish Civil War 1936-1939 would have eclipsed religion altogether However as Juan José Lahuerta argues in this book the war caused a considerable revival of certain themes of religious art In particular it intensified Pablo Picasso's lifelong preoccupation with the subject of the Crucifixion The work of the Swiss surrealist painter Max von Moos 1903-1979 throws additional light on the paradox at hand In 1938 i.e. one year after Picasso painted Guernica von Moos published an essay entitled Religious Painting of Our Time that addresses some of the critical issues then confronted by church art issues of communication and expression realism and abstraction that turn out to offer surprising insights into Picasso's art if not into modern art altogether

print to present paintings of all the key biblical events in the Christian calendar by Old Masters from the early Renaissance onwards. The stories of Christianity and painting have been intertwined since at least the Middle Ages. The painters of the early high and late Renaissance in Italy, Spain and northern Europe learned their art and craft while working in the service of both the Church and devout patrons, producing depictions of scenes from the Bible and the lives of the saints for the benefit and instruction of clergy and worshippers alike. This book follows a course through the Christian year from Advent and the Christmas season through Holy Week and Easter and the periods of Ordinary Time to present thirty works celebrating the key events and festivals of the liturgical calendar by some of the best-known names from art history. Velázquez, Piero della Francesca, Rembrandt, Raphael, Giotto, Titian and Caravaggio are just some of the many celebrated artists included in the book with their representations of feasts such as the Immaculate Conception, the Annunciation, the Nativity, the Crucifixion, the Resurrection, Pentecost and All Saints. John S. Dixon guides the reader by offering detailed analysis of the formal qualities and symbolism of each painting while outlining the biblical stories that inspired their creation and explaining their religious and art historical significance. Full illustrations and close-up details of the featured works are accompanied by comparative illustrations of paintings and sculptures of the subjects by other masters. This beautiful book will enable all lovers of painting, both Christian and non-Christian, to expand their appreciation of these magnificent works of art.
