Morrow, 2008-12-08 An accessible well researched introduction to the people and principles behind the show s creation Essential Choice An Outstanding Academic Title of the Year By the late 1960s more than a few critics of American culture grouched about the condition of television programming and in particular the quality and content of television shows for children In the eyes of the reform minded commercial television crassly exploited young viewers its violence and tastelessness served no higher purpose than the bottom line The Children s Television Workshop CTW and its fresh approach to writing and producing programs for kids emerged from this growing concern Sesame Street CTW s flagship hour long show aimed to demonstrate how television could help all preschoolers including low income urban children prepare for first grade In this engaging study

Robert W Morrow explores the origins and inner workings of CTW how the workshop in New York scripted and designed Sesame Street and how the show became both a model for network television and a thorn in its side Through extensive archival research and a systematic study of sample programs from Sesame Street s first ten seasons Morrow tells the story of Sesame Street s creation the ideas techniques organization and funding behind it its place in public discourse and its ultimate and unfortunate failure as an agent of commercial television reform An insightful look at American children s television Library Journal

Handbook of Children, Culture, and Violence Nancy E. Dowd, Dorothy G. Singer, Robin Fretwell Wilson, 2005-11-23 The Handbook of Children Culture and Violence provides a comprehensive interdisciplinary examination of childhood violence that considers children as both consumers and perpetrators of violence as well as victims of it This Handbook is the first single volume to consider situations when children are responsible for violence rather than focusing exclusively on occasions when they are victimized

Communication, Commerce and Power Edward A. Comor, 2016-01-06 In this history of US based direct broadcast satellite developments the United States and other nation states are shown to be the ultimate arbiters of their ongoing histories In making this now unfashionable argument Edward A Comor directly challenges recent academic work that tends to privilege global processes over national and argues that the contemporary world order is being shaped primarily by transnational rather than nation state based forces In testing this orientation with empirical research on US foreign communication policy since 1960 Communication Commerce and Power compels academics and policy makers to rethink commonplace assumptions about the characteristics and potentials of the contemporary and future international political economy

Target, Prime Time Kathryn C. Montgomery, 1991 Offering a book length exploration of network television's relations with advocacy groups Kathryn C. Montgomery presents a comprehensive picture of the impact of organized pressure on prime time TV Exposing the inner workings of network television as no other book has done Montgomery's study demonstrates how behind the scenes struggles have shaped the images, messages, and values that enter people's homes every night It also raises critical questions about television's role in our society and its responsibility to the American public

Public Television For Sale William Hoynes, 2019-09-16 Public television is uniquely positioned in our country to contribute to the invigoration of democratic public life because ostensibly it is neither driven by the market nor dominated by the state In this comprehensive analysis of the forces that shape our public television system sociologist William Hoynes finds that public television increas

Living Room Lectures Nina C. Leibman, 2010-07-22 With a breadwinner dad, a homemaker mom, and squeaky clean kids the 1950s television family has achieved near mythological status as a model of what real families ought to be Yet feature films of the period often portrayed families in trouble with parents and children in conflict over appropriate values and behaviors Why were these representations of family apparently so far apart Nina Leibman analyzes many feature films and dozens of TV situation comedy episodes from 1954 to 1963 to find surprising commonalities in their representations of the family Redefining the comedy as a family melodrama she compares film and television depictions of familial power, gender roles, and economic attitudes Leibman's explorations reveal how themes of guilt, deceit, manipulation, anxiety, and disfunctionality that obviously characterize such movies as Rebel without a Cause, A Summer Place, and Splendor in the Grass also crop up in such TV shows as The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet, Father Knows Best, Leave It to Beaver, The Donna Reed Show, and My Three Sons Drawing on interviews with many of the participants of these productions, archival documents, and trade journals, Leibman sets her discussion within a larger institutional history of 1950s film and television Her discussions shed new light not only on the reasons for both media's near obsession with family life but also on changes in American society as it reconfigured itself in the postwar era

children's education addressing both cognitive and multi ethnic aspects and prominent informed challenge to the prevailing popular view that children are unaffected and unharmed by exposure to media violence This volume informs ongoing debates across a broad spectrum of current critical issues and suggests avenues for future research It is pertinent and provocative for the most sophisticated scholar in the field as well as for students in areas of developmental or social psychology communication education sociology marketing broadcasting and film public policy advertising and medicine pediatrics It is also appropriate for courses in children media and society

Bandwagon Effects in High-technology Industries Jeffrey H. Rohlfs, 2003 The theory of bandwagon effects in high technology industries illustrated by historical and contemporary case studies

All the News That's Fit to Sell James T. Hamilton, 2011-10-23 That market forces drive the news is not news Whether a story appears in print on television or on the Internet depends on who is interested its value to advertisers the costs of assembling the details and competitors products But in All the News That's Fit to Sell economist James Hamilton shows just how this happens Furthermore many complaints about journalism media bias soft news and pundits as celebrities arise from the impact of this economic logic on news judgments This is the first book to develop an economic theory of news analyze evidence across a wide range of media markets on how incentives affect news content and offer policy conclusions Media bias for instance was long a staple of the news Hamilton's analysis of newspapers from 1870 to 1900 reveals how nonpartisan reporting became the norm A hundred years later some partisan elements reemerged as for example evening news broadcasts tried to retain young female viewers with stories aimed at their Democratic political interests Examination of story selection on the network evening news programs from 1969 to 1998 shows how cable competition deregulation and ownership changes encouraged a shift from hard news about politics toward more soft news about entertainers Hamilton concludes by calling for lower costs of access to government information a greater role for nonprofits in funding journalism the development of norms that stress hard news reporting and the defining of digital and Internet property rights to encourage the flow of news Ultimately this book shows that by more fully understanding the economics behind the news we will be better positioned to ensure that the news serves the public good
