Irish History Matters Professor Brian M. Walker, 2019-06-17 While knowledge of history can explain our contemporary situation an awareness of the myths and misuses of our history can bring a broader and more conciliatory approach to current political and social challenges History or more correctly views of the past or historical myths have shaped politics in both Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland. These views served in part to cause and sustain the Troubles. Eventually many historical perceptions were challenged which helped to promote the peace process. New ideas of revised and shared history were important. These changes are explored here. The public expression of history in Ireland through commemoration of important historical events and persons is investigated in a number of chapters. The impact of historical developments on identity is studied not just in Ireland north and south but also among the Irish diaspora especially in America. In Irish History Matters Brian M Walker uses three decades of research to explore the effects historical events have had on Irish politics and society and why they still have an important influence today.

Mirrors of Mortality (Routledge Revivals) Joachim Whaley, 2012-08-06. First published in 1981, this reissue examines mankind's preoccupation with death and mortality by isolating various societies in different periods of time. The authors examine not only the formal rituals associated with the last rite of passage but also the social attitudes to death and dying which these rituals evidence. The essays establish that different periods do seem to be characterized by different images of death and attitudes to it but the authors wisely avoid trying to impose strict chronological pattern. A pioneering work in the historical study of attitudes to death, this reissue should reignite discussion on the significance of death in human history. Christiane Sourvinou Inwood examines attitudes to death as reflected in myth and religious thought in Ancient Greece and relates them to social and economic change. R C Finucane analyses the social significance of the exemplary deaths of kings, criminals, traitors and saints in medieval Europe. Paul Fritz's essay illustrates the importance of royal burials in early modern Britain while Joachim Whaley examines the social and political significance of funerals in Hamburg between 1500 and 1800. John McManners discusses the work of Philippe Aries and other prominent French scholars on the history of attitudes to death. David Irwin examines the images of death portrayed in European tombs around 1800. C A Bayly analyzes the relationship between death ritual and society in Hindu Northern India while David Cannadine discusses the impact of war on attitudes to death in modern Britain.

Memory and Recovery in Times of Crisis Fiona Larkan, Fiona Murphy, 2017-11-09. This book presents a social scientific reading of the challenges of memory and recovery in times of crisis. Drawing on different interpretations of what constitutes crisis, this collection uses lenses of economics, identity and commemoration to question how memory and recovery is being constituted through larger discourses of political claims of moving forward, healing and identity. Memory and Recovery in Times of Crisis examines how memory is dis or re-interred through social processes and further how recovered memories are challenged or legitimized. It also presents a set of questions that will stimulate further reflections on what kind of role understandings of memory of crisis can play in recovery. Given the world we find ourselves living in in 2017, a world subject to multiple intersecting crises, how we understand the dynamics of memory and recovery is a pressing issue indeed. This book will appeal to both scholars and students of anthropology and sociology.
