Power, Love and Evil Wayne Cristaudo,2008 Love and evil are real they are substances of force fields which contain us as constituent parts Of all the powers of life they are the two most pregnant without meaning hence the most generative of what is specifically human Love and evil stand in the closest relationship to each other evil is both what destroys love and what forces more love out of us it is as Augustine astutely grasped privative requiring something to negate but it is also born out of misdirected love Breaking with naive realist and post modern dogmas about the nature of the real this book provides the basis for a philosophy of generative action as it draws upon examples from philosophy literature religion and popular culture While this book has a sympathetic ear for ancient and traditional narratives about the meaning of life it offers a philosophy appropriate for our times and our crises It is particularly directed at readers who are seeking for new ways to think about our world and self making and who are as dissatisfied with post Nietzschean and post Marxian 20th century social theory as they are by more traditional philosophical and naturalistic accounts of human being Distortion and Love Nigel Rapport, 2016-07-07. In this ground-breaking book, a theory of distortion of the way in which the processes of human life are subject to interference, diversion, and transformation is developed by way of the art of one of Britain's greatest twentieth-century painters, and that art's public reception. Devoted to his native village of Cookham on Thames, Stanley Spencer painted not only landscapes and portraits with loving detail but also the memory feelings which he felt were a sacred part of his consciousness. Yet Spencer was also a controversial public figure, with some taking the view that his visionary paintings were ugly distortions of human life, even marks of an immoral nature. Examining how Spencer lived his vision, how he painted it and wrote it, and also how his attempts to communicate that vision were received by his contemporaries and have continued to be interpreted since his death, the author posits distortion as key an intrinsic aspect both of human creation and of human interaction. What we intend to make, to say, to do, and have done, often mutates in the process of being expressed or put into effect; we live amid distortion. Love, the affective appreciation of one another, is then a means by which we accommodate distortion and its consequences in our lives. An illustration through Stanley Spencer's story of significant aspects of a human condition, this book will appeal across disciplines, including to art historians and students of Spencer's work, as well as to scholars of anthropology with interests in creativity, perception, and interpretation.
