Mapping Murder Walking In Killers Footsteps:

Mapping Murder David Canter, 2005 Mapping Murder reveals all about geographical profiling a technique that has enabled police across the world to solve many high profile cases

The Road to Murder Adam Lynes, 2017-05-08 Why do serial killers gravitate towards certain kinds of occupation Why do they pursue certain types of victim How do they leave the radar and remain hidden Through his wide knowledge of the topic honed at one of Britain's leading centres for criminological studies Adam Lynes demonstrates how theory practice profiling and behaviour intertwine to identify the kind of people we should fear and especially if we are vulnerable to predators The book also looks at those personality types most likely to become serial killers whilst hiding in plain sight From Britain's serial killing studies centre of excellence Looks in depth at eight of Britain's serial killer drivers dealing with some of the most notorious crimes of modern times A fresh and uniquely interesting perspective Demonstrates the links between mobility transience recognisance predatory behaviour and acting out murderous fantasies From the text It is apparent that driving as a form of occupational choice is a popular form of employment for British serial murderers In an effort to determine why this may be the case studies of eight British serial murderers in the book demonstrate just how such an occupation can impact upon these offenders criminal behaviour These findings may prove to be of benefit to scholars of serial murder and to those who attempt to apprehend them

The Grangegorman Murders Alan Bailey, 2015-07-31 On the morning of 7 March 1997 the bodies of two elderly female patients were discovered in their sheltered accommodation at Grangegorman Psychiatric Hospital in Dublin It would be a further 16 years before Mark Nash was convicted of the notorious Grangegorman murders but not before Dean Lyons an innocent man spent months in prison for a crime he did not commit only to tragically die of a heroin overdose before his name was cleared Here Alan Bailey a retired member of the Garda Siochána who worked on the original case and who always insisted Lyons was innocent recalls the investigation of the most brutal murders in Irish criminal history and how pressure on the Garda Siochána to solve the crime led to one of the greatest miscarriages of justice in the history of the Irish state

Serial Killers David Wilson, 2007 This book looks at all serial murders in Britain from the gay murders of Michael Copeland in 1960 to the Ipswich murders of 2006 Throughout the work follows events from a social and victim related perspective Criminologist and ex prison governor David Wilson concludes that we are not all at risk everyday from what he terms hunting Britons rather it is people from a variety of vulnerable groups the elderly women involved in prostitution gay men runaways throwaways and children moving from place to place

Criminal Investigative Failures D. Kim Rossmo, 2008-12-15 Avoid Major Investigative Traps What causes competent and dedicated investigators to make avoidable mistakes jeopardizing the successful resolution of their cases Authored by a 21 year police veteran and university research professor Criminal Investigative Failures comprehensively defines and discusses the causes and problems most common to fail
