Manufacturing Powerlessness in the Black Diaspora

Charles St. Clair Green,2001 Despite the economic utopianism brought on by globalization effective solutions to the persistent plight of urban blacks throughout the African diaspora continue to elude scholars politicians and community leaders Charles Green brings a decade of research and original fieldwork in Africa the Caribbean and the United States to investigate the interface of the historic racism faced by these urban communities and contemporary trends of globalization Green pays particular attention to the condition of the youth whose aspirations vulnerabilities and insights into their own conditions are central to the future prospects for their communities as a whole Considering the impacts of economic restructuring and cultural diffusion alike his analysis asserts the importance of both global ties and local distinctiveness Ultimately Manufacturing Powerlessness aims to encourage the formation of alliances throughout the diaspora so that urban black communities can manufacture a future of empowerment Visit the author s web page The Emancipatory City?

Loretta Lees,2004-08-31 The Emancipatory City is a wonderful addition to a growing literature on the public culture of the city In these spaces tolerance and intolerance difference and indifference transgressions resistances and playful spontaneity erupt to give texture to urban life The book broadens our gaze and deepens our understanding of how cities enable people to express themselves and be free Robert A Beauregard New School University New York Who are cities for What kinds of societies might they most democratically embody And how can cities be emancipatory sites The ambivalent status of urban space in terms of emancipation democratisation justice and citizenship is central to recent work in urban geography new cultural geography critical geography and postmodern planning as well as literature on urban social justice public space and the politics of identity Seeking alternative and progressive visions of the emancipatory city through an exploration of the tensions and possibilities between the freedoms and constraints offered by the city the authors of The Emancipatory City build on this wealth of current perspectives to present an critical analysis of urban experience Dance in the City Helen Thomas,1997-07-21 This exciting new and original collection locates dance within the spectrum of urban life in late modernity through a range of theoretical perspectives It highlights a diversity of dance forms and styles that can be witnessed in and around contemporary urban spaces from dance halls to raves and the club striptease from set dancing to ballroom dancing to hip hop and swing and to ice dance shows from the ballet class to fitness aerobics and art dance which situates itself in a dynamic relation to the city Gary, the Most American of All American Cities S. Paul O'Hara,2011-01-06 U S Steel created Gary Indiana The new steel plant and town built on the site in 1906 were at once a triumph of industrial capitalism and a bold experiment in urban planning Gary became the canvas onto which the American public projected its hopes and fears about modern industrial society In its prime Gary was known as the magic city steel s greatest achievement and an industrial utopia later it would be called the very model of urban decay S Paul O Hara traces this stark reversal of fortune and reveals America's changing expectations. He delivers a riveting account of the boom or bust mentality of American industrialism from the turn of the 20th century to the present day. Branding New York Miriam Greenberg, 2009-09-10 Winner of the 2009 Robert Park Book Award for best Community and Urban Sociology book. Branding New York traces the rise of New York City as a brand and the resultant transformation of urban politics and public life. Greenberg addresses the role of image in urban history showing who produces brands and how and demonstrates the enormous consequences of branding. She shows that the branding of New York was not simply a marketing tool rather it was a political strategy meant to legitimize market based solutions over social objectives. Thick Space Dorothee Brantz, Sasha Disko, Georg Wagner-Kyora, 2014-03-15 Could the concepts of metropolitanism and thick space aid our understanding of historical and contemporary urban change? Essays by scholars from both sides of the Atlantic provide interdisciplinary approaches to the complex dynamics of large scale urbanization. The book opens with conceptual questions regarding the development of metropolises and metropolitan studies. The following sections provide analyses of the social, environmental and cultural dimensions of metropolitan spaces from both a theoretical and an empirical perspective such as the role of planning and urban parks, the impact of ethnic diversity and segregation, the place of cinematic visions or the centrality of infrastructures and architecture. Imagining Law Renee J. Heberle, Benjamin Pryor, 2009-01-08 Drucilla Cornell's contribution to legal thought and philosophy is unique in its attention to diverse traditions and the possibilities of dialogue among them. Renee J. Heberle and Benjamin Pryor bring together scholars from a range of disciplines who reflect on Cornell's influence and importance to contemporary social and political theory and critically engage with ideas and arguments central to her published work. The final chapter is Cornell's own response to the contributors' views, establishing a record of a critical exchange among top scholars from across disciplines. Creative Control Michael L. Siciliano, 2021-03-02 Workers in cultural industries often say that the best part of their job is the opportunity for creativity. At the same time, profit-minded managers at both traditional firms and digital platforms exhort workers to be creative. Even as cultural fields hold out the prospect of meaningful employment, they are marked by heightened economic precarity. What does it mean to be creative under contemporary capitalism? And how does the ideology of creativity explain workers' commitment to precarious jobs? Michael L. Siciliano draws on nearly two years of ethnographic research as a participant observer in a Los Angeles music studio and a multichannel YouTube network to explore the contradictions of creative work. He details how such workplaces feature engaging dynamic processes that enlist workers in organizational projects and secure their affective investment in ideas of creativity and innovation. Siciliano argues that performing creative labor entails a profound ambivalence: workers experience excitement and aesthetic engagement alongside precarity and alienation. Through close comparative analysis, he presents a theory of creative labor that accounts for the roles of embodiment, power, alienation and technology in the contemporary workplace. Combining vivid ethnographic detail and keen sociological insight, Creative Control explains why cool jobs help us understand how workers can participate in their own exploitation

Negotiating the Mediated City

Zlatan Krajina, 2013-11-26 This book is an interdisciplinary empirical investigation of how people interact with public screens in their daily lives In more and more surprising locations screens of various kinds appear within the sightlines of passers by in contemporary cities Outdoor advertisers target audiences which are increasingly mobile public art uses screens to interrogate urban change while postmodern architecture finds electronic imagery a suitable tool of expression Traditionally urban sociology research has assumed that people seek to filter urban stimuli but recent accounts of public screens suggest producers design and position display interfaces site specifically so as to engage with those moving past This study offers insight both into the dynamics of actual encounters and into the long term process of how people learn to live with repeated invitations to consume media in public spaces The book includes four cases street advertising underground transport advertising and installation art in London UK and media facade architecture in Zadar Croatia Krajina shows that maintaining familiarity with everyday surroundings in media cities that change beyond citizens control is a temporary achievement and a recursive struggle Finalist for the Jane Jacobs Urban Communication Foundation book award 2014
