Religion, Culture and Methodology Theodorus P. van Baaren, 1973 Science of Religion. Studies in Methodology Lauri Honko, 2011-12-07 Since its founding by Jacques Waardenburg in 1971 Religion and Reason has been a leading forum for contributions on theories, theoretical issues and agendas related to the phenomenon and the study of religion. Topics include among others category formation, comparison, ethnophilosophy, hermeneutics, methodology, myth, phenomenology, philosophy of science, scientific atheism, structuralism and theories of religion. From time to time the series publishes volumes that map the state of the art and the history of the discipline Theory and Method in Religious Studies Frank Whaling, 2012-10-25 This paperback edition contains selected articles from the original clothbound editions of Contemporary Approaches to The Study of Religion Vol I The Humanities Vol II The Social Sciences Religion and Reason 27-28

Comparing Religions: A Limitative Approach J. G. Platvoet, 2011-11-30 No detailed description available for Comparing Religions A Limitative Approach Religion, Culture and Methodology Theodorus Petrus van Baaren, Han J. W. Drijvers, 1973 Perspectives on Method and Theory in the Study of Religion Armin Geertz, Russel McCutcheon, 2000-04-20 This volume collects select papers on methodology in the study of religion that were originally presented at the XVIIth Congress of the International Association for the History of Religions held in Mexico City in 1995. Granted the status of adjunct proceedings for the Congress, the collection opens with the editors' detailed survey of the longstanding importance of discussions on methodology within the IAHR. The twenty-one essays which follow examine religion and the history of the study of religion within a variety of theoretical contexts. The essays are organized in terms of three general sub-divisions: general issues in methodology from the impact of both postmodernism and reflexive anthropology on the study of religion to the politics of religious studies as practiced in different national settings; reflections on the categories commonly employed by scholars working in the field e.g. religion, syncretism, gender, New Religious Movements, sacred power, experience etc; and finally the collection ends with a review symposium on one of the more sophisticated recent treatments of the problem of defining religion: Benson Saler's Conceptualizing Religion (Brill 1993). Despite carrying out their work in a variety of settings from Denmark and Finland to Britain, Switzerland, Germany, Canada, the USA and Mexico, the authors all model a similar approach to studying religion as but one instance of human culture The Question of Methodological Naturalism Jason N. Blum, 2018-09-11 The traditions and institutions that we call religions abound with references to the supernatural, ancestral spirits, karma, the afterlife, miracles, revelation, deities etc. How are students of religion to approach the behaviors, doctrines and beliefs that refer to such phenomena which by their very nature are supposed to defy the methods of empirical research and the theories of historical scholarship? That is the question of methodological naturalism. The Question of Methodological Naturalism offers ten thoughtful engagements with that perennial question for the academic study of religion. Contributors include established senior scholars and newer voices propounding a range of perspectives resulting in both surprising points of convergence and irreconcilable differences in how our shared discipline should be conceptualized and practiced

The Study of Religion and its Meaning J.E. Barnhart, 2011-11-21 Since its founding by Jacques Waardenburg in 1971 Religion and Reason has been a leading forum for contributions on theories, theoretical issues and agendas related to the phenomenon and the study of religion. Topics include among others category formation, comparison, ethnophilosophy, hermeneutics, methodology, myth, phenomenology, philosophy of science, scientific atheism, structuralism and theories of religion. From time to time the series publishes volumes that map the state of the art and the history of the discipline

Naturalism and Protectionism in the Study of Religions Juraj Franek, 2020-02-06 How should we study religion? Must we be religious ourselves to truly understand it? Do we study religion to advance our knowledge or should the study of religions help to reintroduce the sacred into our increasingly secularized world? Juraj Franek argues that the study of religion has long been split into two competing paradigms: reductive naturalist and non-reductive protectionist. While the naturalistic approach seems to run the risk of explaining religious phenomena away, the protectionist approach appears to risk falling short of the methodological standards of modern science. Franek uses primary source material from Greek and Latin sources to show that both competing paradigms are traceable to Presocratic philosophy and early Christian literature. He presents the idea that naturalists are distant heirs not only of the French Enlightenment but also of the Ionian one. Likewise, he argues that protectionists owe much of their arguments and strategies not only to Luther and the Reformation but to the earliest Christian literature. This book analyses the conflict between reductive and non-reductive approach in the modern study of religions and positions the Cognitive Science of Religion against a background of previous theories, ancient and modern, to demonstrate its importance for the revindication of the naturalist paradigm

NVMEN, the Academic Study of Religion, and the IAHR Tim Jensen, Armin Geertz, 2015-11-24 Nvmn publishes papers representing the most recent scholarship in all areas of the history of religions ranging from antiquity to contemporary history. It covers a diversity of geographical regions and religions of the past as well as of the present. The approach of the journal to the study of religion is strictly non-confessional. While the emphasis lies on empirical source-based research, typical contributions also address issues that have a wider historical or comparative significance for the advancement of the discipline. Numen also publishes papers that discuss important theoretical innovations in the study of religion and reflective studies on the history of the discipline. Brill is proud to present this special volume of articles compiled to celebrate the occasion of the 60th anniversary of NVMEN International Review for the History of Religions in 2014. The articles in this volume have been selected under the auspices of the International Association for the History of Religions (IAHR) and reflect critically on the past, present and future of NVMEN, the IAHR and the study of the History of Religions

Manufacturing Religion Russell T. McCutcheon, 1997-06-19 In this new book, author Russell McCutcheon offers a powerful critique of traditional scholarship on religion, focusing on multiple interrelated targets. Most prominent among these are the History of Religions as a discipline Mircea Eliade one of the founders of the modern discipline recent scholarship on Eliade's life and politics contemporary textbooks on world religions and the oft repeated bromide that religion is a sui generis phenomenon McCutcheon skillfully analyzes the ideological basis for and service of the sui generis argument demonstrating that it has been used to constitute the field's object of study in a form that is ahistoric apolitical fetishized and sacrosanct As such he charges it has helped to create departments jobs and publication outlets for those who are comfortable with such a suspect construction while establishing a disciplinary ethos of astounding theoretical naivete and a body of scholarship to match Surveying the textbooks available for introductory courses in comparative religion the author finds that they uniformly adopt the sui generis line and all that comes with it As a result he argues they are not just uncritical which helps keep them popular among the audiences for which they are intended but badly disserve but actively inhibit the emergence of critical perspectives and capacities And on the geopolitical scale he contends the study of religion as an ahistorical category participates in a larger system of political domination and economic and cultural imperialism

The Humanities Frank Whaling, 2019-10-08 No detailed description available for The Humanities

After Bardaisan G. J. Reinink, Alexander Cornelis Klugkist, 1999 The present collection of twenty five studies represents the general theme of continuity and change as applied to various topics connected with the rich heritage of Syriac culture These studies cover the period from the early third to the fourteenth centuries with an incidental excursion into modern times The focal areas are early Syriac Christianity and its Umwelt and the later West Syrian and East Syrian traditions Most of the contributions deal with historical subjects with the general theme elaborated in two different directions first ecclesiastical history monasticism hagiography and theology and second secular history literature scholarship ideas and religions In a more specific sense the contributions focus on patterns of cultural continuity and change such as the influence and reception of Greek secular and theological culture and literature developments within early and later Syriac asceticism religious controversy the interaction between different religious communities and the effects of major political and social changes on the cultural and religious life of the various Syriac communities One of the most radical political changes in the Middle East concerns the Arab conquest and the rise of Islam in the seventh century Some authors explicitly discuss the consequences of these changes for the Christian Syriac and Armenian populations The effects of these historical events on intellectual social and economic life are some of the topics discussed in this connection Of particular interest is the number of newly edited Syriac texts in this volume which make available translations of Greek theological works works resulting from the reception of pagan philosophy and magic texts reflecting popular belief

Science, Religion, the Humanities and Hope Anne Runehov, Michael Fuller, 2024-03-19 This book collects a multidisciplinary range of contributions focusing on the prolific and seminal work of Willem Drees in the fields of philosophy of religion philosophy of the humanities and science and theology religion Trained in both theoretical physics and theology philosophy of religion Drees holds doctoral degrees in both theology and in philosophy and amongst other distinguished positions held professorships at the University of Leiden and at the University of Tilburg Drees was also Editor in Chief of Zygon Journal of Religion Science between 2008 and 2018 and served as President of the European Society for the Study of Science and Theology ESSSAT between 2002 and 2008 In 2018 he was elected as member of the Royal Holland Society of Sciences and Humanities KHMW This contributed volume builds on Drees expansive and provocative scholarly contributions notably around the concept and meaning of naturalism and the humanities to the fields of science and religion as exemplified by his works Religion Science and Naturalism 1996 and What Are the Humanities For 2021 In a time where more and more young people across the globe are entering higher education such cross disciplinary explorations and re evaluations are vital to the field Accordingly by approaching his work from a variety of disciplines this collection illuminates the broad reach of Drees work and provides scholars from various fields with many new and rich opportunities avenues for research
