Remaking The Godly Marriage Gender Negotiation In Evangelical Families:

Remaking the Godly Marriage John P. Bartkowski, 2001 While religious leaders often have enormous influence over their members beliefs and how they translate their beliefs into action in everyday life the individual family remains the place where religious values are practiced through and ultimately transferred to the next generation As such the family is an extremely important though frequently overlooked topic of study for sociologists of religion In Remaking the Godly Marriage John Bartkowski studies evangelical Protestants and their views on marriage and gender relations and how they are lived within individual families The author compares elite evangelical prescriptions for godly family living with the day to day practices in conservative Protestant households He asks How serious are the debates over gender and the family that are manifested within contemporary evangelicalism What are the values that underlie this debate Have these internecine disputes been altered by the emergence of new evangelical movements such as biblical feminism and the Promise Keepers And given the fact that leading evangelicals advance competing visions of godly family life how do conservative religious spouses make sense of their own family relationships and gender identities Through in depth interviews with evangelical married couples and an exhaustive study of evangelical family advice manuals Bartkowski explores the disputes and ambivalence concerning traditional gender roles and patriarchal models of family life which derive from the tension between evangelical Protestantism as a religious subculture and the broader American secular culture in which it is embedded Bartkowski reveals how evangelical men and women jointly negotiate gender roles within their families and selectively appropriate values of the larger culture even as they attempt to cope with the conflicting messages of their own faith contributions range from the injustices of colonialism to postcolonial critical readings of texts suppression and appropriation each section complete with a responding essay Questioning how well UK students understand Africancentred and generated approaches of biblical criticism whether African scholars consider UK centric criticism valid and how accurately the western canon represents current UK based scholarship these essays illustrate the trends and challenges faced in biblical studies in the two centres of study and discusses how these questions are better answered with dialogue rather than in isolation

Schroeder, 2014-02-28 Joy A Schroeder offers the first in depth exploration of the biblical story of Deborah an authoritative judge prophet and war leader For centuries Deborah s story has challenged readers traditional assumptions about the place of women in society Schroeder shows how Deborah s story has fueled gender debates throughout history An examination of the prophetess s journey through nearly two thousand years of Jewish and Christian interpretation reveals how the biblical account of Deborah was deployed against women for women and by women who aspired to leadership roles in religious communities and society Numerous women and men who supported women s aspirations to leadership used Deborah s narrative to justify female claims to political and religious authority Opponents to women s public leadership endeavored to define Deborah s role as private or argued that she was a divinely authorized exception not to be emulated by future generations of women Deborah s Daughters provides crucial new insight into the history of women in Judaism and Christianity and into women s past and present roles in the church synagogue and society Soft Patriarchs, New Men W. Bradford Wilcox, 2004-05 In the wake of dramatic recent changes in American family life evangelical and mainline Protestant churches took markedly different positions on family change This work explains why these two traditions responded so differently to family change and then goes on to explore how the stances of evangelical and mainline Protestant churches toward marriage and parenting influenced the husbands and fathers that fill their pews According to W Bradford Wilcox the divergent family ideologies of evangelical and mainline churches do not translate into large differences in family behavior between evangelical and mainline Protestant men who are married with children Mainline Protestant men he contends are new men who take a more egalitarian approach to the division of household labor than their conservative peers and a more involved approach to parenting than men with no religious affiliation Evangelical Protestant men meanwhile are soft patriarchs not as authoritarian as some would expect and given to being more emotional and dedicated to their wives and children than both their mainline and secular counterparts Thus Wilcox argues that religion domesticates men in ways that make them more responsive to the aspirations and needs of their immediate families The Wisdom of the Spirit Professor Pete Ward, Very Revd Prof Martyn Percy, 2014-09-28 In this groundbreaking book exploring Christianity and contemporary culture internationally renowned scholars including David Martin Alister McGrath Billy Abraham Billy Kay and
