False and Distorted Memories Robert A. Nash, James Ost, 2016-10-04 Our memories shape how we think about the past how we plan for the future and how we think about ourselves Yet our memories are also constantly being reinvented we often remember our experiences differently from how they truly happened and can even remember experiences that never happened at all False and Distorted Memories provides an overview of recent and ongoing developments in the science of false memory World leading researchers unpick questions about flawed recollections discussing issues as varied as the reliability of highly emotional memories why we sometimes begin to remember fictional experiences that we have deliberately fabricated and what happens when we stop believing our memories Each chapter demonstrates how memory science has furthered our understanding of these important questions by exploring theoretical ideas and psychological research methods that underpin their investigations Edited by Robert Nash and James Ost this volume offers an international and up to date perspective on false and distorted memories The volume also draws attention to the broad range of real life contexts in which such distortions might arise and their potential consequences False and Distorted Memories illustrates the ease with which memory can be contaminated and the power of the resulting memory errors providing an integral text for researchers and students interested in the psychology of memory

Second-Generation Memory and Contemporary Children's Literature Anastasia Ulanowicz, 2013-09-02 Winner of the Children's Literature Association Book Award This book visits a range of textual forms including diary novel and picturebook to explore the relationship between second generation memory and contemporary children's literature Ulanowicz argues that second generation memory informed by intimate family relationships textual mediation and technology is characterized by vicarious rather than direct experience of the past As such children's literature is particularly well suited to the representation of second generation memory insofar as children's fiction is particularly invested in the transmission and reproduction of cultural memory and its form promotes the formation of various complex intergenerational relationships Further children's books that depict second generation memory have the potential to challenge conventional Western notions of selfhood and ethics This study shows how novels such as Lois Lowry's The Giver 1993 and Judy Blume's Starring Sally J Freedman as Herself 1977 both of which feature protagonists who adapt their elders' memories into their own mnemonic repertoires implicitly reject Cartesian notions of the unified subject in favor of a view of identity as always already social relational and dynamic in character This book not only questions how and why second generation memory is represented in books for young people but whether such representations of memory might be considered radical or conservative Together these analyses address a topic that has not been explored fully within the fields of children s literature trauma and memory studies and Holocaust studies      How to develop a perfect memory Dominic O'Brien,      Nineteen Eighty Eight Andrew McGahan, 1998-03-15 Gordon wants out A failed writer and bottleshop boy he wants to escape from his overcrowded house from Brisbane from the bicentennial from everything He stumbles into Wayne who has connections and the promise of work and they head north Without a map Their destination Cape Don a weather station on a secluded peninsula where they hope to find solitude and artistic inspiration What they don t realize is that they ll be stuck in a run down shack amid a crocodile infested swamp on the most isolated point of the Australian continent with only a few unimpressed locals for company Gordon and Wayne travel thousands of miles and still don t get anywhere but their hilarious descent into madness described in McGahan s deadpan prose gives us a new understanding of youth alienation and failed dreams
