behind the curtain of silence that often hangs between us the patients who rely on the health care system and the women and men who form the backbone of that system and who are entrusted with our intimate care It lets us hear why nurses today do what they do and it allows those nurses to show us in their own words what has mattered most to them in their professional careers The twenty three intimate self portraits in The Call of Nursing help us see more clearly the kinds of challenges nurses face and accept on a routine basis and offer a rare glimpse into lives of women and men committed to care and Nursing: Health Education and Improving Patient Self-Management Barbara Sassen, 2017-10-10. This book describes the latest advances in health education and patients' self-management, addressing core questions such as: How can you motivate a patient to adopt a healthier lifestyle, and how can you support their self-management? Though there is a broad consensus within the nursing profession on the importance of health promotion and the promotion of self-management, nursing professionals often struggle with the underlying theoretical and practical aspects involved, as well as the right type of intervention to use and how to evaluate the results. The book departs from international trends, which primarily underline the importance of prevention and focus on such issues as the increase in the number of people with chronic health problems and comorbidity, the empowerment of patients, and the technological developments in the health care system. In the first chapters, it examines health at the micro, meso, and macro level, combined with epidemiological health indicators. The following chapters focus on prevention, health promotion, and self-management, while also broadly discussing prevention. The book then turns to the development and purpose of, as well as plans for, health promotion and health education. The Intervention Mapping protocol is the starting point, addressing questions such as: how to motivate a patient to other healthier behavior. Subsequently, the field of health promotion is extended to disease prevention, patient education, and self-management. On the basis of patients' needs, the book describes methods and interventions to promote self-management in detail. Self-management and chronic health problems are also highlighted, along with the patient's social network in connection with self-management and eHealth. Lastly, the book explores the relationship between nursing and health promotion, as well as disease prevention, nursing diagnoses, nursing interventions, and care results. Additionally, this edition includes two trainings on Promoting the self-management of the patient and on What is the role of the nursing professional in promoting self-management of the patient. This book is intended for bachelor and master courses for nursing professionals.

The Future of Nursing 2020-2030

National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine, Committee on the Future of Nursing 2020-2030, 2021-09-30 The decade ahead will test the nation's nearly 4 million nurses in new and complex ways. Nurses live and work at the intersection of health education and communities. Nurses work in a wide array of settings and practice at a range of professional levels. They are often the first and most frequent line of contact with people of all backgrounds and experiences seeking care and they represent the largest of the health care professions. A nation cannot fully thrive until everyone, no matter who they are, where they live or how much money they make, can live their healthiest possible life and helping people live their healthiest life is and has always been the essential role of nurses. Nurses have a critical role to play in achieving the goal of health equity, but they need robust education, supportive work environments, and autonomy. Accordingly, at the request of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation on behalf of the National Academy of Medicine, an ad hoc committee under the auspices of the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine conducted a study aimed at envisioning and charting a path forward for the nursing profession to help reduce inequities in people's ability to achieve their full health potential. The ultimate goal is the achievement of health equity in the United States, built on strengthened nursing capacity and expertise. By leveraging these attributes, nursing will help to create and contribute comprehensively to equitable public health and health care systems that are designed to work for everyone. The Future of Nursing 2020-2030: Charting a Path to Achieve Health Equity explores how nurses can work to reduce health disparities and promote equity while keeping costs at bay, utilizing technology, and maintaining patient and family-focused care into 2030. This work builds on the foundation set out by The Future of Nursing: Leading Change, Advancing Health 2011 report.
