Danaro and Fred Mackey had cheered for the club; then you go against them. "Go on, I don't want your support."

Fred and Lou fell between the two groups and therefore had to face this problem of divided allegiance. Doc's position on the corner was so definitely established that no one even considered the possibility of his choosing to bowl for the Community Club against the Nortons.

This was the only match between the two teams that ever took place. The corner boys were satisfied with their victory, and the club did not seek a return match. Tony Cardio objected to the way in which the Nortons had tried to upset the concentration of his team and said it was no fun to bowl against such poor sports. There were, however, clashes with individual members of the club. One night in November, Doc, Frank Boelli, Joe Dodge, and I were bowling when Chick Morelli and Lou Danaro came in together. We agreed to have two three-man teams, and Chick and Doc chose sides. Chick chose Lou and me. The match was fairly even at first, but Doc put his team far ahead with a brilliant third string. Toward the end of this string, Chick was sitting next to Joe Dodge and mumbling to him, "You're aousy, you're aousy. You're a no good bowler."

Representation In Ethnography:

Representation in Ethnography John Van Maanen, 1995-01-18 For at least a decade the function of the ethnographer's work as simple cultural description has been challenged. In response, ethnographic texts have been deconstructed for their origins, their biases, and their literary devices, all of which have resulted in heightened methodological self-consciousness and a concern for reflexivity. This volume explores many of the dimensions of the representational challenges facing contemporary ethnography. The distinguished contributors Van Maanen, Manning, Wolcott, Agar, Fine, Richardson, and others cover topics such as fieldnotes, the role of description, narrative, humor, and acknowledgments, the relationship between ethnography and other forms of writing, and alternative means of presenting ethnographic work. Anyone interested in qualitative methods, particularly ethnography, and those who are involved in the examination of the inner workings of ethnographic writing will consider this a valuable work.

Approaches to Ethnography Colin Jerolmack, Shamus Khan, 2017-10-23 No ethnographer can record and analyze everything that she encounters in the field. We must make choices about what to look at and how to look at it, which means privileging some aspects of social life while bracketing others. Approaches to Ethnography enumerates the key analytic strategies which Jerolmack and Khan call approaches that ethnographers deploy to tame the buzzing confusion of the social world. The book identifies eight approaches that typify ethnography, which it groups and compares along four axes: 1. Micro, organizational and macro; 2. people and places and mechanisms; 3. dispositions and situations; and 4. reflexivity. Each approach, it is shown, enables the illumination of a distinct dimension of the social world. Every chapter is written by a seasoned ethnographer who enumerates one of the approaches and reflects on how that approach shapes their field site selection, observations, and analysis. Taken as a whole, the chapters show how these approaches, which operate more like sensitizing devices than theoretical mandates, can play a greater role in guiding the kinds of questions that get asked and answered in the field than whether one adopts an inductive or deductive stance toward theory. Engaging, accessible, and often inspiring, Approaches to Ethnography offers a practical and novel way to teach, evaluate, and conceptualize ethnographic research.

Working Images Ana Isabel Alfonso, Laszlo Kurti, Sarah Pink, 2004-08-02 Visual methods such as drawing, painting, video, photography, and hypermedia offer increasingly accessible and popular resources for ethnographic research. In Working Images, prominent visual anthropologists and artists explore how old and new visual media can be integrated into contemporary forms of research and representation. Drawing upon projects undertaken both at home in their native countries and abroad in locations such as Ethiopia and Venezuela, the book's contributors demonstrate how visual methods are used in the field and how these methods can produce and communicate knowledge about our own and other cultures. As well as focusing on key issues such as ethics and the relationship between word and image, they emphasize the huge range of visual methods currently opening up new possibilities for field research, from cartoons and graphic art to new media such as digital video and online technologies.

Ethnography Michael H. Agar, 1995 Doing Visual Ethnography Sarah Pink, 2001-05 This text explores the use and potential of photography video and electronic media in ethnographic and social research The book has a reflexive approach to the theoretical methodological practical and ethical issues for using media The Ethnographic Self Amanda Coffey, 1999-03-10 What are the relationships between the self and fieldwork How do personal emotional and identity issues impact upon working in the field This book argues that ethnographers and others involved in fieldwork should be aware of how fieldwork research and ethnographic writing construct reproduce and implicate selves relationships and personal identities All too often research methods texts remain relatively silent about the ways in which fieldwork affects us and we affect the field The book attempts to synthesize accounts of the personal experience of ethnography In doing so the author makes sense of the process of fieldwork research as a set of practical intellectual and emotional accomplishments The book is thematically arranged and illustrated with a wide range of empirical material Representation Stuart Hall, 1997-04-08 This broad ranging text offers a comprehensive outline of how visual images language and discourse work as systems of representation Individual chapters explore representation as a signifying practice in a rich diversity of social contexts and institutional sites the use of photography in the construction of national identity and culture other cultures in ethnographic museums fantasies of the racialized Other in popular media film and image the construction of masculine identities in discourses of consumer culture and advertising and the gendering of narratives in television soap operas
