homogeneous vision of death in the case of some literary movements How do writers perceive imagine and describe their death through their personal diaries or how do they metabolize the death of the significant others through their writings To what extent does the literary representation of death refer to the extra fictional socio historically constructed Death Is it moral to represent death in children s literature What are the differences and similarities between representing death in literature and death representations in other connected fields Are metaphors and literary representations of death forms of death denial or on the contrary a more insightful way of capturing the meaning of death

Representations of Death in Nineteenth-Century US Writing and Culture Lucy Frank,2018-01-18 From the famous deathbed scene of Harriet Beecher Stowe s Little Eva to Mark Twain s parodically morbid poetess Emmeline Grangerford a preoccupation with human finitude informs the texture of nineteenth century US writing This collection traces the vicissitudes of this cultural preoccupation with the subject of death and examines how mortality served paradoxically as a site on which identity and subjectivity were productively rethought Contributors from North America and the United Kingdom representing the fields of literature theatre history and American studies analyze the sexual social and epistemological boundaries implicit in nineteenth century America s obsession with death while also seeking to give a voice to the strategies by which these boundaries were interrogated and displaced Topics include race and gender based investigations into the textual representation of death imaginative constructions and re constructions of social practice with regard to loss and memorialisation and literary re conceptualisations of death forced by personal and national trauma

After the Death of Childhood David Buckingham,2013-06-06 What will be the fate of childhood in the twenty first century Will children increasingly be living media childhoods dominated by the electronic screen Will their growing access to adult media help to abolish the distinctions between childhood and adulthood Or will the advent of new media technologies widen the gaps between the generations still further In this book David Buckingham provides a lucid and accessible overview of recent changes both in childhood and in the media environment He refutes simplistic moral panics about the negative influence of the media and the exaggerated optimism about the electronic generation In the process he points to the challenges that are posed by the proliferation of new technologies the privatization of the media and of public space and the polarization between media rich and media poor He argues that children can no longer be excluded or protected from the adult world of violence commercialism and politics and that new strategies and policies are needed in order to protect their rights as citizens and as consumers Based on extensive research After the Death of Childhood takes a fresh look at well established concerns about the effects of the media on children It offers a challenging and refreshing approach to the perennial concerns of researchers parents educators media producers and policy makers

Global Perspectives on Death in Children's Literature Lesley D. Clement, Leyli Jamali, 2015-07-30 This volume visits death in children's literature from around the world making a substantial contribution to the dialogue between the expanding fields of Childhood Studies, Children's Literature and Death Studies. Considering both textual and pictorial representations of death, contributors focus on the topic of death in children's literature as a physical reality, a philosophical concept, a psychologically challenging adjustment, and/or a social construct. Essays covering literature from the US, Mexico, El Salvador, Guatemala, Canada, the UK, Sweden, Germany, Poland, Bulgaria, Brazil, Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Union, India, and Iran display a diverse range of theoretical and cultural perspectives. Carefully organized sections interrogate how classic texts have been adapted for the twenty-first century, how death has been politicized, ritualized, or metaphorized, and visual strategies for representing death, and how death has been represented within the context of play. Asking how different cultures present the concept of death to children, this volume is the first to bring together a global range of perspective on death in children's literature and will be a valuable contribution to an array of disciplines.

Death, Emotion and Childhood in Premodern Europe Katie Barclay, Kimberley Reynolds, Ciara Rawnsley, 2017-02-06 This book draws on original material and approaches from the developing fields of the history of emotions and childhood studies and brings together scholars from history, literature, and cultural studies to reappraise how the early modern world reacted to the deaths of children. Child death was the great equaliser of the early modern period, affecting people of all ages and conditions. It is well recognised that the deaths of children struck at the heart of early modern families, yet less known is the variety of ways that not only parents but siblings, communities, and even nations responded to childhood death. The contributors to this volume ask what emotional responses to child death tell us about childhood and the place of children in society. Placing children and their voices at the heart of this investigation, they track how emotional norms, values, and practices shifted across the fifteenth to nineteenth centuries through different religious, legal, and national traditions. This collection demonstrates that child death was not just a family matter but integral to how communities and societies defined themselves. The Child in Contemporary Latin American Cinema Deborah Martin, 2019-01-04 What is the child for Latin American cinema? This book aims to answer that question, tracing the common tendencies of the representation of the child in the cinema of Latin American countries and demonstrating the place of the child in the movements, genres, and styles that have defined that cinema. Deborah Martin combines theoretical readings of the child in cinema and culture with discussions of the place of the child in specific national, regional, and political contexts to develop in-depth analyses and establish regional comparisons and trends. She pays particular attention to the narrative and stylistic techniques at play in the creation of the child's perspective and to ways in which the presence of the child precipitates experiments with film aesthetics. Bringing together fresh readings of well-known films with attention to a range of little-studied works, The Child in Contemporary Latin American Cinema examines films from the recent and contemporary period focussing on topics such as the death of the child in street child films the role of the child in post dictatorship filmmaking and the use of child characters to challenge gender and sexual ideologies The book also aims to place those analyses in a historical context tracing links with important precursors and paying attention to the legacy of the child s figuring in the mid century movements of melodrama and the New Latin American Cinema
