Research Transformed Into Practice:

Lost in Practice: Transforming Nordic Educational Action Research Karin Rönnerman, Petri Salo, 2014-11-04 Lost in Practice offers a further development of the notion of Nordic educational action research as described in an earlier volume Nurturing praxis 2008 aiming to deepen and enrich understandings of the Nordic educational tradition and its various practices. It explores Nordic traditions and theories such as bildung, practical knowledge regime and translation theory with the aim of furthering a seminal conversation between practice theory and action research. Furthermore, it illuminates the use of these theories in the context of Nordic countries by presenting a number of case studies on professional development practices in which specific forms and arenas for enhancing dialogue and meaning making are in focus. The practices of study and research circles, peer group mentoring and dialogue conferences as developed in the Nordic countries throughout the 20th century are presented and discussed both in terms of established traditions and of practices of collaborative development. The book also reflects on the regional traditions and educational practices in the Nordic countries, which are reflected on in the third part of the book. The volume addresses teachers at all levels in the educational system, particularly those who are interested in understanding educational action research and furthering collaborative forms of professional development based on insights from different traditions for understanding and furthering the development of educational practices without getting lost. Clinical Research Transformed Olli S. Miettinen, Johann Steurer, Albert Hofman, 2019-10-15 In this Information Age, the practices of clinical medicine should no longer be based on what clinical doctors actively know. Rather, all of the importantly practice-relevant knowledge should not only already exist but also be codified in cyberspace in directly practice-guiding expert systems for the benefit of both doctors and patients everywhere. Each of these systems, discipline-specific, would be prompted by a particular type of case presentation, present the doctor a questionnaire specific to cases of the type at issue, and document the doctor's answers to the questions. If at issue would be a case of complaint about a particular type of sickness, the system would translate the resulting diagnostic profile of the case into the corresponding probabilities of the illnesses to be considered. Similarly, if at issue would be an already diagnosed case of a particular illness, the system would ask about and record the relevant elements in the prognostic profile of the case and then translate this profile into the probabilities of various outcomes to be considered, probabilities specific to the choice of treatment and prospective time in addition to that profile. And besides these systems would analogously address the causal origin, etiogenesis, of cases of particular types of illness. While the requisite knowledge base for these systems, notably for the probabilities in them, has not been addressed by such patient-oriented clinical research as has been conducted very extensively up to now, this book delineates the nature of the suitably transformed research. The critically transformative innovation in the research is the studies' focus on Gnostic Probability Functions, dia etio and prognostic, in the framework of logistic regression models. This book also presents a vision of how this critically transformative research would most expeditiously be provided for and also conducted among select sets of academic teaching hospitals

Human Rights Transformation in Practice Tine Destrooper, Sally Engle Merry, 2018-11-09 Human rights are increasingly described as being in crisis But are human rights really on the verge of disappearing Human Rights Transformation in Practice argues that it is certainly the case that human rights organizations in many parts of the world are under threat but that the ideals of justice fairness and equality inherent in human rights remain appealing globally and that recognizing the continuing importance and strength of human rights requires looking for them in different places These places are not simply the Human Rights Council or regular meetings of monitoring committees but also the offices of small NGOs and the streets of poor cities In Human Rights Transformation in Practice editors Tine Destrooper and Sally Engle Merry collect various approaches to the questions of how human rights travel and how they are transformed offering a corrective to those perspectives locating human rights only in formal institutions and laws Contributors to the volume empirically examine several hypotheses about the factors that impact the vernacularization and localization of human rights how human rights ideals become formalized in local legal systems sometimes become customary norms and at other times fail to take hold Case studies explore the ways in which local struggles may inspire the further development of human rights norms at the transnational level Through these analyses the essays in Human Rights Transformation in Practice consider how the vernacularization and localization processes may be shaped by different causes of human rights violations the perceived nature of violations and the existence of networks and formal avenues for information sharing Contributors Sara L M Davis Ellen Desmet Tine Destrooper Mark Goodale Ken MacLean Samuel Mart nez Sally Engle Merry Charmain Mohamed Vasuki Nesiah Arne Vandenbogaerde Wouter Vandenhoe Johannes M Waldm ller
