Magical State Nature Money And Modernity In Venezuela:

The Magical State Fernando Coronil, 1997-11-10 In 1935 after the death of dictator General Juan Vicente Gómez Venezuela consolidated its position as the world's major oil exporter and began to establish what today is South America's longest lasting democratic regime. Endowed with the power of state oil wealth successive presidents appeared as transcendent figures who could magically transform Venezuela into a modern nation. During the 1974-78 oil boom dazzling development projects promised finally to effect this transformation. Yet now the state must struggle to appease its foreign creditors, counter a declining economy and contain a discontented citizenry. In critical dialogue with contemporary social theory Fernando Coronil examines key transformations in Venezuela's polity, culture and economy, recasting theories of development and highlighting the relevance of these processes for other postcolonial nations. The result is a timely and compelling historical ethnography of political power at the cutting edge of interdisciplinary reflections on modernity and the state.

Populism in Venezuela Ryan Brading, 2013 Populism in Venezuela analyses the emergence, formation, reproduction and resistance to a left wing populist project in a major world oil producer. For readers who seek to understand the historical, economical and sociological contexts that gave rise to a 38 year old mestizo mulatto Lieutenant Colonel who stormed the presidential palace in a bloody coup d'état in 1992, subsequently returned to the same palace in 1998 but this time as a democratically elected President and has been in power since, this book is the right place to start. In spite of opposition attempts to oust President Hugo Chávez and his political machinery from power, this socialism of the twenty first century hegemonic project has succeeded in creating an institutional structure designed to improve the lives of the previously excluded population. An in depth fieldwork study of a Cuban healthcare programme named Barrio Adentro deep in the slums in Venezuela's poor and rural areas and the nonviolence Manos Blancas white hands opposition student movement provides a descriptive and analytical account of people's problems from both sides in a deeply polarised society. The concluding chapter of this book examines Chávez's intention to stay in power until 2031. An original resource for scholars, students and general readers, this book not only furthers our understanding of populism in Venezuela but also provides a sound method to analyse populist practices in other contexts.

International Mediation in Venezuela Jennifer McCoy, Francisco Diez, 2011 International Mediation in Venezuela analyzes the effort of the Carter Center and the broader international community to prevent violent conflict, to reconcile a deeply divided society and to preserve democratic processes. From their perspective as facilitators of the intervention and as representatives of the Carter Center Jennifer McCoy and Francisco Diez present an insider account of mediation at the national and international level.

promise for development which can be a seductive force This book explores the depth of extractivism in economies around the world The contributions to this book investigate the connection between the political economy of extractivism and its impact on the sociopolitical fabric of natural resource exporting societies in Asia Africa Latin America and Eastern Europe The book engages with a comparative perspective on the persistence of extractivism in these four different world regions The book focuses on the formative power of rents and argues that rents are seductive The individual contributions flesh out this seductive force of rents on different political scales and how this seduction affects a variety of actors The book investigates how these actors react to the prevalence of rent how they align or break with specific political and economic strategies and how myths of resource driven development play out on the ground The book therefore underlines that rent theory bridges current debates in different area communities and offers fresh insights into extractivist societies social economic and political dynamics This book will be of significant interest to readers in political economy political science development studies and area studies

Violent Environments Nancy Lee Peluso, Michael Watts, 2001 Do environmental problems and processes produce violence Current U S policy about environmental conflict and scholarly work on environmental security assume direct causal links between population growth resource scarcity and violence This belief a staple of governmental decision making during both Clinton administrations and widely held in the environmental security field depends on particular assumptions about the nature of the state the role of population growth and the causes of environmental degradation The conventional understanding of environmental security and its assumptions about the relation between violence and the environment are challenged and refuted in Violent Environments Chapters by geographers historians anthropologists and sociologists include accounts of ethnic war in Indonesia petro violence in Nigeria and Ecuador wildlife conservation in Tanzania and friendly fire at Russia's nuclear weapons sites Violent Environments portrays violence as a site specific phenomenon rooted in local histories and societies yet connected to larger processes of material transformation and power relations The authors argue that specific resource environments including tropical forests and oil reserves and environmental processes such as deforestation conservation or resource abundance are constituted by and in part constitute the political economy of access to and control over resources Violent Environments demands new approaches to an international set of complex problems powerfully arguing for deeper more ethnographically informed analyses of the circumstances and processes that cause violence poverty and socio economic inequalities      Culture as Renewable Oil Penélope Plaza Azuaje,2018-12-18 This book unpacks the links between oil energy state power urban space and culture by looking at the Petro Socialist Venezuelan oil state It challenges the disciplinary compartmentalisation of the analysis of the material and cultural effects of oil to demonstrate that within the Petrostate Territory Bureaucratic Power and Culture become indivisible To this end it examines how oil is a cultural resource in addition to a natural resource implying therefore that struggles over culture implicate oil and struggles over oil implicate culture This book develops a story about Venezuela as an oil state and the way it deploys its policies to instrumentalise culture and urban space by examining the way Petro Socialism manifests in space how it is imagined in speeches and how it is discursively constructed in adverts The discussion reveals how a particular culture is privileged by the Venezuela state owned oil company and its social and cultural branch The book explores to what effect the state owned oil company constructs a parallel notion of culture that becomes inextricable from land akin to a mineral deposit and tightly controlled by the Petrostate The book will appeal to researchers who are interested in Resource Management Environmental Studies Cultural Studies and Political Geography      Democracy, Revolution and Geopolitics in Latin America Luis Fernando Angosto-Ferrandez,2013-11-12 Hugo Ch vez won re election in the 2012 Venezuelan presidential election despite a closer margin between candidates than in previous elections The results were puzzling for those who believed that Ch vez s government had long ago reached its limits while Ch vez s supporters were struck by the growth of the opposition vote Thus understanding the Venezuelan election of 2012 has proved to be challenging with various recent studies focused upon it Luis F Angosto Ferr ndez s book advances two ideas not previously discussed the relationship between electoral behavior in Venezuela and contemporary Latin American geopolitics and the way that relationship is projected through the candidates appeal to narratives that situate Venezuela at the core of a heroic Latin American tradition and of a new regional process of integration This edited volume first contextualizes and explains the results of the last re election of Hugo Ch vez in terms of its geopolitical conditionings and implications Contributors tackle Latin American geopolitics by analyzing Venezuelan foreign policy and the country s role in continental projects of supra national integration Contributors also examine electoral strategy and tactics in order to show how the two main candidates built their campaign on emotional grounds as much on rational ones This will be connected to the investigation of new narratives of national identification in contemporary Venezuela and how they may have practical implications in the design of policies addressing issues such as indigenous rights community media and national security Compiling state of the art research on Latin American and Venezuelan politics this book will appeal to academics and professionals who specialize in Latin American studies international relations democracy and indigenous peoples      A Living Past John Soluri,Claudia Leal,José Augusto Pádua,2018-02-19 Though still a relatively young field the study of Latin American environmental history is blossoming as the contributions to this definitive volume demonstrate Bringing together thirteen leading experts on the region A Living Past synthesizes a wide range of scholarship

A Blessing and a Curse Matt Wilde, 2023-10-10

A Blessing and a Curse examines the lived experience of political change moral uncertainty and economic crisis amid Venezuela's controversial Bolivarian Revolution. Drawing on ethnographic research conducted in an urban barrio over the course of a decade Matt Wilde argues that everyday life in this period was intimately shaped by a critical contradiction that in their efforts to capture a larger portion of oil money and distribute it more widely among the population the governments of Hugo Chavez and Nicolas Maduro pursued policies that ultimately entrenched Venezuela in the very position of dependency they sought to overcome. Offering a new synthesis between anthropological work on energy politics and morality the book explores how the use of oil money to fund the revolution's social programs and political reforms produced profound cultural anxieties about the contaminating effects of petroleum revenues in everyday settings. Tracing how these anxieties rippled out into community life family networks and local politics Wilde shows how questions about how to live a good life came to be intimately shaped by Venezuela's contradictory relationship with oil. In doing so he brings a vital perspective to contemporary debates about energy transitions by proposing a new way of thinking about the political and moral economies of natural resources in postcolonial settings.

Producing India Manu Goswami, 2010-01-26

When did categories such as a national space and economy acquire self evident meaning and a global reach? Why do nationalist movements demand a territorial fix between a particular space economy culture and people? Producing India mounts a formidable challenge to the entrenched practice of methodological nationalism that has accorded an exaggerated privilege to the nation state as a dominant unit of historical and political analysis. Manu Goswami locates the origins and contradictions of Indian nationalism in the convergence of the lived experience of colonial space the expansive logic of capital and interstate dynamics. Building on and critically extending subaltern and postcolonial perspectives her study shows how nineteenth century conceptions of India as a bounded national space and economy bequeathed an enduring tension between a universalistic political economy of nationhood and a nativist project that continues to haunt the present moment. Elegantly conceived and judiciously argued Producing India will be invaluable to students of history political economy geography and Asian studies.
