

A black and white photograph of a tall, conical lighthouse built of dark stone or brick. The lighthouse has a dark lantern room at the top. To its right is a two-story white keeper's house with a gabled roof and a chimney. A wooden staircase leads up to the lighthouse. Several people are visible on the rocky ground around the structures. The background is a hazy, overcast sky.

Lighthouses of Bar Harbor and the Acadia Region Timothy E. Harrison, 2009 With the exception of Mount Desert Island s Bass Harbor Head Lighthouse the lighthouses of Bar Harbor and the Acadia region are among the most remote and lesser known lighthouses of Maine As the vessel traffic changed in these areas in the early 1900s some of these lighthouses were sold into private ownership while others became less important as aids to navigation Since the structures were located on remote islands or in a highly restricted military installation the photographs and historical firsthand memories of most of these lighthouses have remained elusive and seemingly lost in the dusty pages of time Through vintage photographs Lighthouses of Bar Harbor and the Acadia Region uncovers the history of these structures that kept watch over Maine s rocky coast

When the Southern Lights Went Dark Mary Louise Clifford, J. Candace Clifford, 2023-10-01 The Confederacy extinguished the lights in all the lighthouses it controlled long before any shots were fired at Fort Sumter When the Southern Lights Went Dark The Lighthouse Establishment During the Civil War tells the story of the men who assumed the daunting task of finding the lenses and lamps repairing deliberate destruction to the towers and lightships and relighting them as soon as the Navy could afford them protection From Cape Hatteras to Ocracoke Light Jupiter Inlet to Tybee Island St Simons to Cockspur Island and others these are the stories from a unique era in United States lighthouse history Unlike in peace time when military officers filled the posts of engineer and inspector in each lighthouse district civilians had to be found who were not only talented enough to build and maintain lighthouses but also could supervise a party of workmen and make decisions on their own Those men in the field had to find keepers see that they were paid and ensure they had food water and essential supplies The Lighthouse Board was far away in Washington and could do little more than give advice order needed equipment record the dispatches from the field and pay the bills it received From Cape Hatteras to Ocracoke Light Jupiter Inlet to Tybee Island St Simons to Cockspur Island and others these are the stories from a unique era in United States lighthouse history

Baker Island Cornelia J. Cesari, 2018-06-18 Baker Island is a quintessential Maine island frozen in time It was settled in 1806 by one family and the island's population peaked at about two dozen people in five households at mid century The US government made use of the island's strategic location at the entrance to Frenchman's Bay with a lighthouse and military facilities Wealthy artistic and academic summer visitors to the region so called rusticators discovered its charm as a day trip destination However by 1930 only the lightkeeper's family remained Now mostly part of Acadia National Park these 123 acres are precious to a disproportionate number of people Every season visitors flock to the area scenic tour airplanes fly overhead and narrated boat tours skirt the shoreline Park rangers lead interpretive tours almost daily leaving from Bar Harbor for half day visits Each summer thousands moor their private boats and row ashore honeymooning celebrating and even scattering ashes Five generations of rusticators have held picnics on the tempestuous south shore's expansive pink granite surface known as the Dance Floor

A History of South Carolina Lighthouses John Hairr, 2014-02-25 Before radar depth finders and satellite guided navigation long before the seafloor was charted with scientific precision mariners relied on lighthouses to approach a coastline safely South Carolina's history with lighthouses goes back nearly two and a half centuries At Cape Romain a windmill was converted into a lighthouse St Philip's Church in Charleston was converted into a beacon for seafarers to aid navigation to the Holy City With such a long and storied past the story of South Carolina's lighthouses is inseparable from its maritime history Join author John Hairr as he recounts the fascinating history of these beacons that have shone above the shores of the Palmetto State
