Abstract

Aim To describe the application of critical ethnography to explain nurses' decisions to remain in or leave bedside nursing, and to describe researcher positioning and reflexivity.

Background Enquiry into hospital nurses' decisions to remain in or leave bedside nursing positions has been conducted from a variety of theoretical perspectives by researchers adopting a range of methodological approaches. This research helps to explain how work environments can affect variables such as job satisfaction and turnover, but provides less insight into how personal and professional factors shape decisions to remain in or leave bedside nursing.

Review methods A critical theoretical perspective was taken to examine the employment decisions made by nurses in a paediatric intensive care unit (PICU).

Data sources Data was collected from nurses ($n=31$) through semi-structured interviews and unobtrusive observation.

Discussion The authors describe critical ethnography as a powerful research framework for enquiry that allowed them to challenge assumptions about why nurses remain in or leave their jobs, and to explore how issues of fairness and equity contribute to these decisions.

Conclusion Critical ethnography offers a powerful methodology for investigations into complex interactions, such as those between nurses in a PICU. In adopting this methodology, researchers should be sensitised to manifestations of power, attend to their stance and location, and reflexion.

Implications for practice/research The greatest challenges from this research included how to make sense of the insider position, how to acknowledge assumptions and allow these to be challenged, and how to ensure that power relationships in the environment and in the research were attended to.

Keywords Critical ethnography, nurses' work, critical theory, nursing research, power, reflexivity

Introduction

ENQUIRY INTO hospital nurses' experiences of work, and their decisions to remain in or leave bedside, or 'staff', nursing positions, has been conducted from various theoretical perspectives and by applying a range of methodologies. Much of what is known about the topic has been obtained by use of cross-sectional survey methods (Vahey et al 2004, Gomersdottir et al 2009) and analysis involving linear or logistic regression.

Findings from these projects have contributed significantly to studies of the effects of work environments on, for example, job satisfaction and turnover, but have provided less insight into how multiple workplace, personal and professional factors intersect to shape nurses' decisions.

In this article, the authors describe an approach to investigating nurses' employment decisions in a highly technological and fast-paced healthcare environment, namely a paediatric intensive care unit (PICU) in a tertiary healthcare centre in western Canada, where few nurses remain in bedside nursing positions throughout their careers. Having a critical theoretical perspective, the authors wanted

Nursings Relationship With Medicine A Critical Realist Ethnography Developments In Nursing And Health Care:

Nursing's Relationship with Medicine Sam Porter, 1995-01-01 This work is a critical realist ethnography of nursing's relationship with medicine. It covers the subject of the development of nurse doctor relations including factors such as patriarchy, racism, and capitalism. Power and Conflict Between Doctors and Nurses Maureen A. Coombs, 2004-02-24

Through observations in three intensive care units, this book draws on the reality of practice to explore how nurses and doctors work in intensive care settings. It examines the power held by the competing knowledge bases, the roles of the different professions, the decision-making process, the sources of conflict, the need for change. Drawing together sociological theories and clinical practice, Power and Conflict Between Doctors and Nurses explores the role of nurses in delivering contemporary health care. It makes a strong case for interdisciplinary working and is particularly timely when health care policy is challenging work boundaries in health care. Nursing and the Division of Labour in Healthcare Davina

Allen, David Hughes, 2017-03-14 This book examines the division of labour between nurses and other health professions and occupations. It connects classic sociological concerns with practical problems affecting the contemporary NHS, such as skill mix in hospitals, the emergence of new roles, the shifting boundaries between medicine and nursing, and the barriers to change that exist. The book contains a series of case studies illustrating tensions, conflict, and accommodation observable when occupations or sub-groups within occupations negotiate new working relationships. Identity Trouble C.

Caldas-Coulthard, R. Iedema, 2016-01-08 Identity Trouble assembles contributions from a variety of discourse fields to discuss the pressures on traditional understandings of identity. The focus is on failures and uncertainties in people's construction of their identities when faced with change, and the contributors raise critical questions about identity and how it may be reconfigured. Nursing Research: Designs and Methods Roger Watson, Hugh McKenna, Seamus Cowman, John Keady, 2008-02-22 This title is directed primarily towards health care professionals outside of the United States. It has been written by nurses for nurses and is research-minded, conceptually and theoretically up to date, and student-centred. It is a comprehensive introduction to nursing research that will allow readers to build up their understanding of the research process and develop confidence in its practical application. Text supported by examples from real-life research. International perspective on nursing research. Comprehensive coverage including established and innovative designs and methods.

Against Critical Thinking in Health, Social

Care and Social Work Tom Grimwood, 2023-09-08 This book stages a provocative dialogue between social work health and social care and contemporary philosophy in order to inform theory and practice in a complex and challenging world Today the social world is marked by deep rooted complexities tensions and challenges Health workers and social workers are constantly reminded to employ critical thinking to navigate this world through their practice But given how many of these challenges pose significant problems for the theories that these subjects have traditionally drawn upon should we now be critical of critical thinking its assumptions its basis and its aspirations itself Arguing that health and social work theory must reconsider its deep rooted assumptions about criticality in order to navigate complex neoliberalism post truth and the relationship between language and late capitalism it examines how the fusion of theory and practice can re imagine critical thinking for health social care and social work It will be of interest to all scholars students and professionals of social work and health and social care Cumulated Index Medicus ,1984 Books In Print 2004-2005 Ed Bowker Staff,Staff Bowker, Ed,2004
