

CHAPTER 2: PSYCHOANALYTIC THEORY (PSYCHOANALYSIS)

In Psychoanalysis, our past experiences influence our present behaviors. Psychoanalysis refers to both a theory and a type of therapy based on the belief that all people possess unconscious thoughts, feelings, desires, and memories. Freud was mentored by Jean-Martin Charcot, whom he learned the hypnotic technique for treating hysteria and Josef Breuer whom he learned about catharsis. Freud did gradually discover free association technique. After the publication of the book "Studies on Hysteria", Freud's "Interpretation of Dreams" book contains many of his own dreams.

According to Freud, the mental apparatus can be broadly understood in terms of three mental systems or the Levels of Mental Life (Topographic Model). The unconscious, preconscious, and conscious. Unconscious consists of drives and instincts that are beyond awareness, yet they motivate many of our behaviors. Unconscious drives can become conscious only in disguised or distorted form, such as dream images, slips of the tongue, or neurotic symptoms. Its processes originate from two sources: (1) repression (the blocking out of anxiety-filled experiences) and (2) phylogenetic endowment (inherited experiences that lie beyond an individual's personal experience). Preconscious contains images that are not in awareness but that can become conscious either quite easily or with some level of difficulty. Experiences that are forgotten are in the preconscious. The 2 sources are conscious perception- when the focus of attention shifts to another idea; unconscious- ideas can slip past the vigilant censor and enter into the preconscious in a disguised form. Conscious is the only level of mental life directly available to us, but it plays a relatively minor role in Freudian theory. Conscious ideas stem from either the perception of external stimuli; our perceptual conscious system, or from unconscious and preconscious images after they have evaded censorship.

Moreover, according to Freud, the core functions of the mind are carried out by three closely related systems, the ego, id, and super-ego, which are called the Provinces of the Mind (Structural Model). First, the Id (das Es) is completely unconscious and it serves as the pleasure principle and seeks constant and immediate satisfaction of instinctual needs. It's the primary process or the basic drives. Second is the Ego (das Ich) is the secondary process, which is governed by the reality principle. It is partly conscious, preconscious and unconscious. It is responsible for reconciling the unrealistic demands of both the id and the superego with the demands of the real world (decision-making branch). This becomes anxious and would use defense mechanisms to protect itself. To Freud, Ego has no energy of its own but borrows from id. Lastly, the Superego (Über Ich) which serves as the idealistic principle, and this develops in ages 5 to 6. Superego has two subsystems: Conscience (results from punishment for improper behavior) and; Ego-ideal (stems from rewards for socially acceptable behavior). When the ego fails to meet the standards of perfection, inferiority feelings will develop. According to Freud, a pleasure-seeking person is dominated by the id, a guilt-ridden or inferior-feeling person is dominated by the superego, and a psychologically healthy person is dominated by the ego. Freud also introduces dynamics of personality, and these refers to those forces that motivate people. The concept includes both instincts (drives) and anxiety.

Drives are a stimulus within an individual, they cannot be avoided through flight response. Every basic drive is characterized by; impetus (amount of force it exerts), source (region of the body in tension), aim (seek pleasure by removing tension), and object (person or thing where the aim is satisfied). The 2 primary instincts are sex (eros) and aggression (thanatos, or the destructive instinct). Sex (libido) aim is to seek pleasure, through the erogenous zones (mouth, anus, and genitals). The object can be any person or thing that brings sexual pleasure. Sex can take many forms including narcissism, love, sadism, and masochism. According to Freud, all infants possess primary narcissism, or self-centeredness, but the secondary narcissism (moderate degree of self-love) of adolescence and adulthood is not universal. Love develops when people invest their libido on an object or a person other than themselves. Sadism is the reception of sexual pleasure from inflicting pain on another. Masochism, on the other hand is the reception of sexual pleasure from painful experiences, satisfies both sexual and aggressive drives. If carried to an extreme, sadism and masochism is considered a sexual perversion but in moderation is a common need. Aggression the destructive instinct aims to return the person to an inorganic state, but it is ordinarily directed against other people and is called aggression. To

Psychoanalysis In Our Time Essays:

Psychoanalysis in Our Time Stefi Pedersen, 1973 Henry Fielding In Our Time J. A. Downie, 2020-11-09 Henry Fielding In Our Time publishes many of the papers presented at the international conference held at the University of London 19-21 April 2007 to commemorate the tercentenary of his birth. Written by established scholars including the acknowledged doyen of Fielding scholars Martin C Battestin of the University of Virginia as well as younger scholars who successfully bring their recent research to bear on neglected areas of Fielding's life and works, the essays offer a cross section of current approaches to Fielding and his writings from his ballad operas, poetry and political journalism via Joseph Andrews, Tom Jones and Amelia, the novels for which he is still best known, to the social pamphlets written during his years at Bow Street as magistrate for Westminster and Middlesex. The collection should appeal both to undergraduate and postgraduate students as well as academics and general readers interested in the eighteenth century in general and Fielding's contribution to the emergence and development of the novel form in particular. Fragments: The Existential Situation of Our Time David Tracy, 2020-04-10 Even as mere fragments, these essays are an imaginatively learned feast for virtually anyone interested in modern theologies. Modern Theology: David Tracy is widely considered one of the most important religious thinkers in North America, known for his pluralistic vision and disciplinary breadth. His first book in more than twenty years reflects Tracy's range and erudition, collecting essays from the 1980s to 2018 into a two-volume work that will be greeted with joy by his admirers and praise from new readers. In the first volume, Fragments, Tracy gathers his most important essays on broad theological questions, beginning with the problem of suffering across Greek tragedy, Christianity and Buddhism. The volume goes on to address the Infinite and the many attempts to categorize and name it by Plato, Aristotle, Rilke, Heidegger and others. In the remaining essays, he reflects on questions of the invisible, contemplation, hermeneutics and public theology. Throughout, Tracy evokes the potential of fragments understood both as concepts and events to shatter closed systems and open us to difference and Infinity. Covering science, literature, philosophy, psychoanalysis and non-Western religious traditions, Tracy provides in Fragments a guide for any open reader to rethink our fragmenting contemporary culture. Tracy demonstrates the range of his philosophical interests in service of theology, particularly his profound attention to hermeneutics. A rich feast. We can be grateful for the insightful essays collected in this volume from one of America's leading theologians. Currents in Theology and Mission National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1973 First multi-year cumulation covers six years 1965-70 Sex and Dehumanization in Art, Thought and Life in Our Time David Holbrook, 1972 Beyond the Analogical Imagination Barnabas Palfrey, Andreas Telser, 2023-10-12 David Tracy is arguably the most influential Roman Catholic theologian writing in English of the past fifty years, both internationally and beyond confessional borders. His generous and ever-expanding conversations, says contributor Willemien Otten, make the future of theology now. Tracy himself says that they lead him like Dante to the love that moves the sun and the other stars Tracy's most famous book The Analogical Imagination is now over four decades old Yet in two volumes of his essays published in 2020 Tracy emphasises the ground breaking new work that he did in the 2010s His mature theological and cultural vision is in need of fresh assessment which this book provides An international cohort of experts introduces the core themes of Tracy's thought critically exploring their relevance for theology today Tracy offers a short response of his own as well as the edited text of a previously unpublished and recent lecture

Discovering the History of Psychiatry Mark S. Micale, Roy Porter, 1994 This book brings together leading international authorities physicians historians social scientists and others who explore the many complex interpretive and ideological dimensions of historical writing about psychiatry The book includes chapters on the history of the asylum Freud anti psychiatry in the United States and abroad feminist interpretations of psychiatry's past and historical accounts of Nazism and psychotherapy as well as discussions of many individual historical figures and movements It represents the first attempt to study comprehensively the multiple mythologies that have grown up around the history of madness and the origin functions and validity of these myths in our psychological century

Adorno, 2019-05-29 As an exile in America during the War Theodor Adorno grew acquainted with the fundamentals of empirical social research something which would shape the work he undertook in the early 1950s as co director of the Frankfurt Institute for Social Research Yet he also became increasingly aware of the fetishism of method in sociology and saw the serious limitations of theoretical work based solely on empirical findings In this lecture course given in 1964 Adorno develops a critique of both sociology and philosophy emphasizing that theoretical work requires a specific mediation between the two disciplines Adorno advocates a philosophical approach to social theory that challenges the drive towards uniformity and a lack of ambiguity highlighting instead the fruitfulness of experience in all its messy complexity for critical social analysis At the same time he shows how philosophy must also realise that it requires sociology if it is to avoid falling for the old idealistic illusion that the totality of real conditions can be grasped through thought alone Masterfully bringing together philosophical and empirical approaches to an understanding of society these lectures from one of the most important social thinkers of the 20th century will be of great interest to students and scholars in philosophy sociology and the social sciences generally The Therapeutic Process Karen Horney, 1975-01-01 Passions of Our Time Julia Kristeva, 2025-03-04 Julia Kristeva is a true polymath an intellectual of astonishingly wide range whose erudition and insight have been brought to bear on psychoanalysis literary criticism gender and sex and cultural critique Passions of Our Time showcases recent essays of Kristeva's that demonstrate the scope of her capacious intellect her gifts as a stylist and the profound contribution of her thought to the challenges of the present The collection begins with vivid recollection of celebrating as a child in Bulgaria Alphabet Day the holiday honoring the Cyrillic letters which proceeds outward into a contemplation of the writer as
