Reorganizing The Military Health System Should There Be A Joint Command:

Reorganizing the Military Health System Susan D. Hosek, Gary Cecchine, 2001 Since the end of WWII the question of whether to create a unified military health system has arisen repeatedly Despite a variety of answers to this question the system has largely retained its traditional structure with separate Army Navy and Air Force medical departments This book documents research on the organization of the military health system It considers 5 alternative organizational structures for their likely impact on peacetime health care and wartime readiness Reorganizing the Military Health System.

Should There Be A Joint Command? ,2001 This report documents research on the organization of the Military Health System MHS This research was initiated as part of a larger project to assess the organization and cost of the Department of Defense s TRICARE health benefits program A focus of this initial work was identifying organizational models in the civilian managed care sector that might be applied to TRICARE Subsequently the research expanded when the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2000 requested a study of the expansion of joint medical operations including an assessment of the merits and feasibility of establishing a joint command Responding to this request required further investigation of medical readiness and joint organizations and the development of alternative joint command structures This report should be of interest to those in the Congress the Department of Defense and elsewhere who are interested in the Military Health System Portions of this report may also interest those concerned about the design of health care organizations especially in the public sector The Military Health System ,2002 Defense health Care; DOD Needs to Address the Expected Benefits, Costs, and Risks for Its newly Approved Medical Command Structure ,2007 What the Army Needs to Know to Align Its Operational and Institutional Activities Frank Camm, Cynthia R. Cook, Ralph Masi, Anny Wong, 2007-01-24 The Army must transform its institutional activities to align them with operating forces to improve support and release resources from institutional activities This document provides a model for evaluating value chains to promote the alignment of needs and resources according to three representational institutional Army activities medical services enlisted accessioning and short term acquisition The Military Health System: How Might It Be Organized? ,2002 Since the end of World War II the issue of whether to create a unified military health system has arisen repeatedly Some observers have suggested that a joint organization could potentially lead to reduced costs better integrated health care delivery a more efficient administrative process and improved readiness A recent RAND study done for the Under Secretary of Defense Personnel and Readiness developed organizational alternatives for the military health system and outlined trade offs inherent in choosing among them This analysis as reported in Reorganizing the Military Health System Should there be a Joint Command by Susan D Hosek and Gary Cecchine concluded that careful consideration should be given to reorganizing TRICARE the military s health care program for active and retired military members and their families but that the additional benefits of a joint command are more difficult to assess Policy & Politics in Nursing and Health Care -
