Report on the Diatoms of the Albatross Voyages in the Pacific Ocean, 1888-1904. By ALBERT MANN. Assisted in the bibliography and citations by P. L. RICKER. Contributions from the United States National Herbarium, Vol. X., Part 5. Washington, Government Printing Office. 1907.

According to the author, the object of this report is, first, to contribute to the systematic study of the diatoms, and, second, to call attention to the value of further investigations in this field for throwing light upon certain meteorological and geological problems connected with marine investigations. There also has been prepared a set of carefully identified specimens of all the species enumerated, including types of all new species, which collection has been deposited in the United States National Museum. On account of the inadequate methods used in making the gatherings from the Albatross, the number of species listed is not nearly so great as might be expected. In fact, considering the large number of soundings and dredgings made and the years over which the work extends, the results are disappointing. It seems unfortunate that the amount of energy and time necessary to properly examine gatherings of this kind should have to be wasted upon barren samples, when the adoption of other methods would have undoubtedly resulted in rich hauls of diatoms. Critical notes upon some three hundred species, thirty-seven of which are new, are given and a sufficiently full discussion of the fifty odd genera concerned is included. The account of the species discussed is considerably more than a mere list, and is of such worth that one regrets all the more the limitations which have been put upon the work. A most careful comparison of the views of various authorities upon each species has been made and should do much towards giving a really clear conception of the forms discussed. When one considers the inaccessibility of a large amount of the literature upon the diatoms, it seems probable that this part of the report will be one of the most helpful features.

While it may not have been practicable under the circumstances to prepare an absolutely exhaustive list of the synonymy, there seems to be no reason for the omission of names elsewhere cited, even though "the horde of synonyms would be so great as to become most misleading unless accompanied by extensive explanations." Instead of such a discussion "being quite foreign to the purpose of this report" it would seem to be the very place in which to set forth as fully as might be necessary, the reasons for retaining or rejecting names. Certainly the present chaotic conditions of the nomenclature of the diatoms can not be cleared up so long as this tedious but necessary aspect of the subject is disregarded.

The number of stations from which diatoms were collected was altogether too meager to warrant any generalizations regarding either the origin of the bottom from which they came, or the course of the ocean currents which carried them. However, the importance of planning future work with such an end in view is very properly pointed out and some good examples are given of specific knowledge of this character being obtained from a study of the diatoms of a given region.

It is a satisfaction to know that all of the species reported upon have been permanently mounted in such a way as to make them readily accessible to those who may have occasion to refer to them. Not only is there a series of group slides containing specimens of all the forms gathered in a specific locality, but each species has been mounted separately, and the position definitely indicated so that it may be instantly found under the microscope. The value of such a set of slides can only be appreciated by those who have had to search for a particular species in the heterogeneous mass of diatoms and other organisms with which it is usually mounted.
