Introducing the Human Genome

The Strategy for 2003

The strategy for 2003 is to complete the sequencing of the human genome. This will be achieved by the completion of the Human Genome Project, which is a major international effort to determine the sequence of the human genome. The project is a collaboration between scientists from many countries, and it is expected that the sequence will be completed by the year 2003.

Key findings

The human genome is a complex of DNA and protein. It is the blueprint for life, and it contains the instructions for building and maintaining the human body. The project is a major international effort to determine the sequence of the human genome. The project is a collaboration between scientists from many countries, and it is expected that the sequence will be completed by the year 2003.

The study reported in this paper is a preliminary report on the results of a study of the human genome. The study is a collaboration between scientists from many countries, and it is expected that the results will be published in the near future.

Conclusions

The results of the study are consistent with the hypothesis that the human genome is a complex of DNA and protein. The study is a collaboration between scientists from many countries, and it is expected that the results will be published in the near future.
