

THE JOSEPH H. HIRSHHORN MUSEUM AND SCULPTURE GARDEN

The Joseph H. Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, Washington D.C., as provided for by Act of Congress, will be a free public museum under the administration of the Smithsonian Institution and will be the permanent home of the collections of art of Joseph H. Hirshhorn and the Joseph H. Hirshhorn Foundation. The problem was to design a monumental museum and sculpture garden that would create a north-south axis across the Washington Mall without interrupting the east-west visual continuity or interfere aesthetically with the existing Smithsonian buildings. The architectural solution is a sunken sculpture garden and a dominant, circular museum building with a circular inner court 231 feet in diameter, three stories high and raised 14 feet above a podium on four massive sculptural supports. The cylindrical form expresses the circulation within the museum and terraces around and under the building extending the visual limits from the Mall to Independence Avenue. The building is set on a podium 360 feet long, 302 feet wide, and enclosed by an eight foot high wall. This place and the sunken garden are to be devoted solely to the exhibition of major pieces of sculpture from the Hirshhorn collection. The museum will contain galleries, areas devoted to art research, library, 200-seat auditorium and supporting facilities.
