John L. Hoogland

Reproductive Success Studies Of Individual Variation In Contrasting Breeding Systems:

Reproductive Success T. H. Clutton-Brock, 1988 This book is well worth buying for its detailed summaries of the 25 studies many of which are classic long term projects and for its insights into the factors determining reproductive success William J Sutherland TREE A must read for anyone interested in evolution mating social systems and population ecology John L Koprowski Journal of Insect Behavior

Cooperative Breeding in Birds Peter B. Stacey, Walter D. Koenig, 1990-04-19 Cooperative breeding is an unusual kind of social behaviour found in a few hundred species worldwide in which individuals other than the parents help raise young Understanding the apparently altruistic behaviour of helpers has provided numerous challenges to evolutionary biologists This book includes detailed first hand summaries of many of the major empirical studies of cooperatively breeding birds It provides comparative information on the demography social behaviour and behavioural ecology of these unusual species and explores the diversity of ideas and the controversies which have developed in this field The studies are all long term and consequently the book summarises some of the most extensive studies of the behaviour of marked individuals ever undertaken Graduate students and research workers in ornithology sociobiology behavioural ecology and evolutionary biology will find much of value in this book Cooperative Breeding in Mammals Nancy G. Solomon, Jeffrey A. French, 1997-03-13 COOPERATIVE BREEDING AND SOCIAL BEHAVIOR IN ANIMAL SOCIETIES

The Black-Tailed Prairie Dog John L. Hoogland, 1995-04 In The Black Tailed Prairie Dog John L Hoogland draws on sixteen years of research at Wind Cave National Park South Dakota in the United States to provide this account of prairie dog social behavior Through comparisons with more than 300 other animal species he offers new insights into basic theory in behavioral ecology and sociobiology Hoogland documents interactions within and among families of prairie dogs to examine the advantages and disadvantages of coloniality By addressing such topics as male and female reproductive success inbreeding kin recognition and infanticide Hoogland offers a broad view of conflict and cooperation Among his surprising findings is that prairie dog females sometimes suckle and at other times kill the offspring of close kin Enhanced by more than 100 photographs this book illuminates the social organization of a burrowing mammal and raises fundamental questions about current theory As the most detailed long term study of any social rodent The Black Tailed Prairie Dog will interest not only mammalogists and other vertebrate biologists but also students of behavioral and evolutionary ecology

Mammal Societies Tim Clutton-Brock, 2016-04-20 The book aims to integrate our understanding of mammalian societies into a novel synthesis that is relevant to behavioural ecologists ecologists and anthropologists It adopts a coherent structure that deals initially with the characteristics and strategies of females before covering those of males cooperative societies and hominid societies It reviews our current understanding both of the structure of societies and of the strategies of individuals it combines coverage of relevant areas of theory with coverage of interspecific comparisons intraspecific comparisons and experiments it explores both evolutionary causes of different traits and their ecological consequences and it integrates research on different groups of mammals with research on primates and humans and attempts to put research on human societies into a broader perspective

Not So Weird After All Rosemary L. Hopcroft, Martin Fieder, Susanne Huber, 2024-03-26 This is the first book to fully examine from an evolutionary point of view the association of social status and fertility in human societies before and after the demographic transition In most nonhuman social species social status or relative rank in a social group is positively associated with the number of offspring with high status individuals typically having more offspring than low status individuals However humans appear to be different As societies have gotten richer fertility has dipped to unprecedented lows with some developed societies now at or below replacement fertility Within rich societies women in higher income families often have fewer children than women in lower income families Evolutionary theory suggests that the relationship between social status and fertility is likely to be somewhat different for men and women so it is important to examine this relationship for men and women separately When this is done the positive association between individual social status and fertility is often clear in less developed pre transitional societies particularly for men Once the demographic transition begins it is elite families particularly the women of elite families who lead the way in fertility decline Post transition the evidence from a variety of developed societies in Europe North America and East Asia is that high status men particularly men with high personal income do have more children on average than lower status men The reverse is often true of women although there is evidence that this is changing in Nordic countries The implications of these observations for evolutionary theory are also discussed This book will be of interest to students and researchers in the social sciences with an interest in evolutionary sociology evolutionary anthropology evolutionary psychology demography and fertility

Penguin Biology Lloyd S. Davis, John T. Darby, 2012-12-02 Penguin Biology is the first broad based collection of biological and ecological studies of these unique birds to be published since 1975 Topics have since become broad ecological hypotheses not species specific descriptions and new technology has taken observations into the oceanic depths Penguin Biology shows new techniques and the applications made of them in contemporary biological and evolutionary theory Penguin Biology is an invaluable reference for ornithologists animal behaviorists animal physiologists marine zoologists marine ecologists evolutionary biologists and Antarctic researchers Major topics covered include Breeding feeding and foraging Behavior and evolution Energetics and physiology New fossil material

Bison Joel Berger, Carol Cunningham, 1994 The highly publicized obscenity trial of Radclyffe Hall's The Well of Loneliness 1928 is generally recognized as the crystallizing moment in the construction of a visible modern English lesbian culture marking a great divide between innocence and deviance private and public New Woman and Modern Lesbian Yet despite unreserved agreement on the importance of this cultural moment previous studies often reductively distort our reading of the formation of early twentieth century lesbian identity either by neglecting to examine in detail the developments leading up to the ban or by framing events in too broad a context against other cultural phenomena Fashioning Sapphism locates the novelist Radclyffe Hall and other prominent lesbians including the pioneer in women's policing Mary Allen the artist Gluck and the writer Bryher within English modernity through the multiple sites of law sexology fashion and literary and visual representation thus tracing the emergence of a modern English lesbian subculture in the first two decades of the twentieth century Drawing on extensive new archival research the book interrogates anew a range of myths long accepted without question and still in circulation concerning to cite only a few the extent of homophobia in the 1920s the strategic deployment of sexology against sexual minorities and the rigidity of certain cultural codes to denote lesbianism in public culture

Evolution and Gender Rosemary L. Hopcroft, 2015-12-22 Offering new research and analysis on the relation between gender and evolution this book explains conflict between the sexes and the frequent emergence and stubborn continuation of patriarchal regimes that serve to control the behavior of women in societies around the world both past and present Women and men are different on average But that does not mean they are unequal Indeed understanding average differences is key to the full realization of equality in health care and other dimensions of social life Hopcroft shows that gender differences in physiology psychology and behavior can be traced to slight differences in evolved traits between men and women These differences exist because of sex differences in investment in offspring which meant that in the environment of evolution some adaptive problems were more important for men to solve than for women and vice versa For men the most important adaptive problem to solve was that of finding a mate Men who did not solve this problem are not our ancestors For women the most important adaptive problem to solve was that of successfully bearing and raising children Women who did not solve this problem are not our ancestors These small differences underlie all the differences described in the book including sex differences in mate preferences physiology cognition aggression status striving and emotional experience It can also help explain the differential treatment of children by parents the differential success of boys and girls in modern schools and sex differences in style of communication

Social Behaviour Tamás Székely, Allen J. Moore, Jan Komdeur, 2010-11-18 Humans live in large and extensive societies and spend much of their time interacting socially Likewise most other animals also interact socially Social behaviour is of constant fascination to biologists and psychologists of many disciplines from behavioural ecology to comparative biology and sociobiology The two major approaches used to study social behaviour involve either the mechanism of behaviour where it has come from and how it has evolved or the function of the behaviour studied With guest articles from leaders in the field theoretical foundations along with recent advances are presented to give a truly multidisciplinary overview of social behaviour for advanced undergraduate and graduate students Topics include aggression communication group living sexual behaviour and co operative breeding With examples ranging from bacteria to social mammals and humans a variety of research tools are used including candidate gene approaches quantitative genetics neuro endocrine studies cost benefit and phylogenetic analyses and evolutionary game theory
