Research Training For Social Scientists:

Research Training for Social Scientists Dawn Burton, 2000-03-15 With indispensable advice for students from all social science backgrounds this handbook provides the core conceptual and practical skills to embark on successful research. The organization of the book reflects the knowledge that is required in order to become a competent and effective researcher. It follows the life cycle of the research project: it begins with a discussion of ethical and philosophical issues, presents guides to both quantitative and qualitative data collection and analysis, provides help on using computers in research and includes advice on how to write up and present a research project. Based on the UK Economic and Social Research Council advice on the training which students should undertake in preparation for postgraduate research, this book will be invaluable for all beginning researchers.

Public Health Service Publication, Crossroads of Social Science Heinz Eulau, 1989 The essays in this collection analyze the successes and failures of the social sciences over the last few decades as well as on their future. The focus of the book is on generic problems, difficulties and dilemmas in the social sciences that the contributors are uniquely qualified to articulate. Each of them has been intimately involved in the development of one or another discipline in the last thirty years or so; each has made significant contributions to that development in many ways; each has a personal perspective on accomplishments and failures, promises and needs, continuities to be continued.

Knowledge Mobilisation and Social Sciences Jon Bannister, Irene Hardill, 2016-03-17 The essays presented in this volume examine knowledge mobilisation and its relation to research impact and engagement. The social sciences matter because they can help us to understand and address the complex challenges confronting society. This is particularly true in an era of significant downward pressure on public expenditure, a consequence of the global fiscal crisis when there is a striking need to ensure that policies are demonstrably effective and efficient. The impact agenda in the UK reflected in parallel global debates actively encourages the social sciences to make and demonstrate a difference to justify and protect social science funding. This volume shows how knowledge mobilisation can be thought of systematically as a process encompassing engagement leading to the co-production and channelling of knowledge to make a difference in the economy and society. This book was originally published as a special issue of Contemporary Social Science.
