Global Perspectives on Critical Architecture Gevork Hartoonian, 2016-03-03 Judging from the debates taking place in both education and practice it appears that architecture is deeply in crisis New design and production techniques together with the globalization of capital and even skilled labour have reduced architecture to a commodified object its aesthetic qualities tapping into the current pervasive desire for the spectacular These developments have changed the architect's role in the design and production processes of architecture Moreover critical architectural theories including those of Breton Heidegger and Benjamin which explored the concepts of technology modernism labour and capital and how technology informed the cultural along with later theories from the 1960s which focused more on the architect's theorization of his/her own design strategies seem increasingly irrelevant In an age of digital reproduction and commodification these theoretical approaches need to be reassessed Bringing together essays and interviews from leading scholars such as Kenneth Frampton Peggy Deamer Bernard Tschumi Donald Kunze and Marco Biraghi this volume investigates and critically addresses various dimensions of the present crisis of architecture It poses questions such as Is architecture a conservative cultural product servicing a given producer-consumer system Should architecture's affiliative ties with capitalism be subjected to a measure of criticism that can be expanded to the entirety of the cultural realm Is architecture's infusion into the cultural the reason for the visibility of architecture today What room does the city leave for architecture beyond the present delirium of spectacle Should the thematic of various New Left criticisms of capitalism be taken as the premise of architectural criticism Or alternatively putting the notion of criticality aside is it enough to confine criticism to the production of insightful and pleasurable texts

The Italian Difference Lorenzo Chiesa, Alberto Toscano, 2009 This volume brings together essays by different generations of Italian thinkers which address whether in affirmative problematizing or genealogical registers the entanglement of philosophical speculation and political proposition within recent Italian thought Nihilism and biopolitics two concepts that have played a very prominent role in theoretical discussions in Italy serve as the thematic foci around which the collection orbits as it seeks to define the historical and geographical particularity of these notions as well their continuing impact on an international debate The volume also covers the debate around O'Connell's weak thought O'Connell's pensiero debole the feminist thinking of sexual difference the re-emergence of political anthropology and the question of communism The contributors provide contrasting narratives of the development of post-war Italian thought and trace paths out of the theoretical and political impasses of the present O'Connell's against what Negri in the text from which the volume takes its name calls O'Connell's the Italian desert O'Connell's
