The Making of Chaucer's English Christopher Cannon, 1998. The Making of Chaucer's English undertakes a substantial reappraisal of the place Chaucer's English occupies in the history of the English language and the language of English literature. It attacks the widespread presumption that Chaucer invented literary English and argues instead that Chaucer's English is generally traditional. It shows that Chaucer's linguistic innovation was as much performance as fact but it also traces the linguistic strategies that made and make the performance of originality so believable. It also includes a valuable history of every word Chaucer uses. The book also interrogates the theory and methodology of historicising languages so even as it explores how Chaucer's words matter it also questions why these particular words have acquired such importance for poets and scholars alike for 600 years.

The Baiuvarii and Thuringi Janine Fries-Knoblach, Heiko Steuer, John Hines, Center for Interdisciplinary Research on Social Stress, 2014. A study of two Germanic tribes, the Baiuvarii and Thuringi, looking at their origins, development, and customs between the fifth and the eighth centuries. The large neighbouring tribes of the Baiuvarii and Thuringi who lived between the Alps and the River Elbe from the fifth to eighth centuries are the focus of this book. Using a variety of different sources drawn from the fields of archaeology, history, linguistics, and religion, the contributors discuss how an ethnos or gens or a tribe such as the Baiuvarii or Thuringi might appear in the written and archaeological evidence. For the Thuringi tribal traditions started around the year 400 or even earlier while the Baiuvarii experienced a much later ethnogenesis from both immigrants and a local partly Romance population in the mid sixth century. The Baiuvarii and Thuringi are studied together because of the astonishing connections between their two settlement landscapes. In the context of the row grave civilisation the Thuringi belonged primarily to the eastern the Baiuvarii to the western sphere. The kingdom of the Thuringi was assimilated into the Merovingian Empire after their defeat by the Franks in the 530s which also changed their burial customs to the style of the western row grave zone. In contrast the Baiuvarii were not Frankicised until more than a century later and their grave customs remained more typically Bavarian. The chapters highlight typical features of each region and beyond settlements agricultural economy law religion language names craftsmanship grave goods mobility and communication.

The book presents a typologically informed analysis of Mediterranean Lingua Franca as documented in the Dictionnaire de la langue franque ou petit mauresque which provides an important historical snapshot of contact induced language change. Based on a close study of the Dictionnaire in its historical and linguistic context the book proposes hypotheses concerning its models authorship and publication history and examines the place of the Dictionnaire's Lingua Franca in the structural typological space between Romance languages on the one hand and pidgins on the other.
