

A romantic couple is shown in a close embrace, lying in bed. The woman, with long blonde hair, is smiling and looking towards the camera. The man, with dark hair, is partially visible behind her, also smiling. They are both wearing white clothing. The background is softly blurred, showing hints of a window with light coming through.

Romantic Challenge:

Romance's Rival Talia Schaffer, 2016-01-05 Romance's Rival argues that the central plot of the most important genre of the nineteenth century the marriage plot novel means something quite different from what we thought. In Victorian novels women may marry for erotic desire but they might instead insist on familiar marriage marrying trustworthy companions who can offer them socially rich lives and futures of meaningful work. Romance's Rival shows how familiar marriage expresses ideas of female subjectivity dating back through the seventeenth century while romantic marriage felt like a new risky idea. Undertaking a major rereading of the rise of the novel tradition from Richardson through the twentieth century Talia Schaffer rethinks what the novel meant if one tracks familiar marriage virtues. This alternative perspective offers new readings of major texts Austen the Brontës Eliot Trollope but it also foregrounds women's popular fiction Yonge Oliphant Craik Broughton. Offering a feminist perspective that reads the marriage plot from the woman's point of view Schaffer inquires why a female character might legitimately wish to marry for something other than passion. For the past half century scholars have valorized desire individuality and autonomy in the way we read novels. Romance's Rival asks us to look at the other side to validate the yearning for work family company or social power as legitimate reasons for women's marital choices in Victorian fiction. Comprehensive in its knowledge of several generations of scholarship on the novel Romance's Rival convinces us to re-examine assumptions about the nature and function of marriage and the role of the novel in helping us not simply imagine marriage but also process changing ideas about what it might look like and how it might serve people.

In the Name of Love Aharon Ben-Ze'ev, Ruhama Goussinsky, 2008 We yearn to experience the idealized love in so many novels movies poems and popular songs. Ironically it is the idealization of love that arms it with its destructive power. Popular media consistently remind us that love is all we need but statistics concerning the rate of depression and suicides after divorce or romantic break up remind us what might happen if all that we need is taken away. This book is about our ideals of love our experiences of love the actual disparity between the two and the manners of coping with this disparity. A major study case of the book concerns men who have murdered their wives or partners allegedly out of love. It is estimated that over 30% of all female murder victims in the United States die at the hands of former or present spouses or boyfriends. How can murdering a loved one be associated with the assumed moral and altruistic love? Not only is love intrinsically ambivalent but it can also give rise to dangerous consequences. Some of the worst evils have been committed in the name of love. A unique collaboration between a leading philosopher in the field of emotions and a social scientist. In the Name of Love presents fascinating insights into romantic love and its future in modern society. The Hedonism of Eudoxus of Cnidus Richard Davies, 2023-12-06 Mathematician and astronomer Eudoxus of Cnidus was a younger contemporary of Plato and an older contemporary of Aristotle on both of whom he exerted some influence during his stays in Athens. This is perhaps most apparent with regard to his ethical doctrine that identifies the good as pleasure hedonism. While Plato seems rather unsure how seriously to take this proposal Aristotle provides the materials for reconstructing the battery of ingenious arguments that Eudoxus brought forward in its defence Taken together in this Element these arguments foreshadow almost everything that has been said in the Western tradition in favour of the positive value of pleasure and if taken aright point in the direction of a hedonism that sets store by the cultivation of activities akin to those for which Eudoxus has been most renowned mathematics and astronomy

The Taming of Romanticism Virgil Nemoianu, 1984 Looking at a broad spectrum of writers English French German Italian Russian and other East Europeans Virgil Nemoianu offers here a coherent characterization of the period 1815-1848 This he calls the era of the domestication of romanticism The explosive visionary core of romanticism is seen to give way after the defeat of Napoleon to an expanded and softer version reflecting middle class values This later form of romanticism is characterized by moralizing efforts to reform society a sentimental yearning for the tranquility of home and hearth and persistent faith in the individual alongside a new skepticism shattered ideals and consequent irony Expanding the application of the term Biedermeier which has been useful in describing this period in German literature Nemoianu provides a new framework for understanding these years in a wider European context
