Hazlitt, 2016-06-17 Excerpt from Notes of a Journey Through France and Italy They have a fine moral perspective not inferior to Claude's aerial one They carry the imagination back two or four thousand years at least and bury it in the remote twilight of history There is an Opaqueness and solemnity in his colouring assimilating with the tone of long past events his buildings are stiff with age his implements of husbandry are such as would belong to the first rude stages of civilization his harvests are such as in the Ruth and Boaz as would yield to no modern sickle his grapes as in the Return from the Promised Land are a load to modern shoulders there is a simplicity and undistinguishing breadth in his figures and over all the hand of time has drawn its veil Poussin has his faults but like all truly great men there is that in him which is to be found nowhere else and even the excellences of others would be defects in him One picture of his in particular drew my attention which I had not seen before It is an addition to the Louvre and makes up for many a flaw in it It is the Adam and Eve in Paradise and it is all that Mr Martin's picture of that subject is not It is a scene of sweetness and seclusion to cure all sadness but despair there is the freshness of the first dawn of creation immortal verdure the luxuriant budding growth of unpruned Nature's gifts the stillness and the privacy About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works A Residence in Greece and Turkey: with Notes of the Journey Through Bulgaria Francis Hervé, 2025-08-03 Reprint of the original first published in 1837 The Antigonus publishing house specialises in the publication of reprints of historical books We make sure that these works are made available to the public in good condition in order to preserve their cultural heritage A Catalogue of the Library of the London Institution: Systematically Classed.
