Novel Histories Lisa Kasmer, 2012-01-12 Novel Histories British Women Writing History 1760 1830 explores issues of historical and literary genres historiography and the gendering of civic and literary roles It demonstrates the new and sometimes subversive ways that women authors pushed the limits of writing history in order to participate in contemporary national civic life otherwise closed to them The Oxford History of the Novel in English Patrick Parrinder, 2011 This series presents a comprehensive global and up to date history of English language prose fiction and written by a international team of scholars dust jacket Sinister histories Jonathan Dent, 2016-07-01 Sinister histories is the first book to offer a detailed exploration of the Gothic s response to Enlightenment historiography It uncovers hitherto neglected relationships between fiction and prominent works of eighteenth century history locating the Gothic novel in a range of new interdisciplinary contexts Drawing on ideas from literary studies history politics and philosophy the book demonstrates the extent to which historical works influenced and shaped Gothic fiction from the 1760s to the early nineteenth century Through a series of detailed readings of texts from The Castle of Otranto 1764 to Maria or The Wrongs of Woman 1798 this book offers an alternative account of the Gothic s development and a sustained revaluation of the creative legacies of the French Revolution

Making Use of History in New South African Fiction Sten Pultz Moslund, 2003 A study of the use of history as political ammunition and literature as historical counter discourse in Mongane Serote s Gods of Our Time Mike Nicol s The Ibis Tapestry and Zakes Mda s Ways of Dying Moslund shows how literary engagement with the past seeks to rupture the continuity of a strongly dichotomised epistemology and through that dissolve the inherited polarisation of society Falsification of history is exposed as constructed discourse and past simplifications of reality as sharply demarcated into homogenous self justifying categorisations of Us against Them are challenged with paradox doubt and introspection The Physiology of the Novel Nicholas Dames, 2007-09-27 How did the Victorians read novels Nicholas Dames answers that deceptively simple question by revealing a now forgotten range of nineteenth century theories of the novel a range based in a study of human physiology during the act of reading He demonstrates the ways in which the Victorians thought they read and uncovers surprising responses to the question of what might have transpired in the minds and bodies of readers of Victorian fiction His detailed studies of novelcritics who were also interested in neurological science combined with readings of novels by Thackeray Eliot Meredith and Gissing propose a vision of the Victorian novel reader as far from the quietly immersed being we now imagine as instead a reader whose nervous system was addressed attacked andsoothed by authors newly aware of the neural operations of their public Rich in unexpected intersections from the British response to Wagnerian opera to the birth of speed reading in the late nineteenth century The Physiology of the Novel challenges our assumptions about what novel reading once did and still does to the individual reader and provides new answers to the question of how novels influenced a culture s way of reading responding and feeling Racism in Novels Elaine Rocha, 2010-04-16 During the first half of the twentieth century both countries witnessed the advance of capitalism translated into an aggressive police of development with the exploitation of minerals construction of railways and roads urbanization and industrialization Along with the economic development Brazilian and South African society tried to take control of their society meaning to control the population in order to maintain the status quo For that end racial definitions classifications theories and policies were fundamental As the features of South African politics and policies of racial segregation emerged with new colors for the world after the end of the Apartheid regime given the testimonies the released documents and the new analysis Brazilians have been pushed to face the problem of racial exclusion unmasking its image as a racial paradise under the lights of new studies as well Elaine Rocha uses novels published in both countries between 1912 and 1953 as a window from where one could see how cultural perceptions policies and of racial differentiation were reflected in the everyday life The analysis of the literary content plus the authors biographies political ideologies and the problems they were facing and interacting together with their intentions of affecting the lives of the readers with the tragedy they illustrated in their novels claiming for a change in the real world
