

Two More Areas of New Deal Reform

PRENTICE HALL

Chapter 23, Section 1

Regulating the Economy

In 1933, Congress passed the National Industrial Recovery Act (NIRA). NIRA established the National Recovery Administration (NRA), which tried to balance the unstable economy through extensive planning. The NRA established codes for fair business practices. These codes regulated wages, working conditions, production, and prices, and set a minimum wage.

Assisting Home-owners and Farmers

The Federal Housing Administration (FHA) worked to improve housing standards and conditions, and insure mortgages.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration (AAA) raised farm prices through subsidies. They paid farmers not to raise certain crops and livestock, hoping that lower production would cause prices to rise.

The Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) provided jobs, hydroelectric power, flood control, and recreational opportunities to farmers in the underdeveloped Tennessee Valley.

Hogan,1987 A re interpretation of the Marshall Plan as an extension of strategic American policy views the plan as the brainchild of the New Deal coalition of progressive private and political interests Economic Planning Claude David Baldwin,Leon Hiram Weaver,Mary Lucille Shay,1942 Roosevelt, the Great Depression, and the Economics of Recovery Elliot A. Rosen,2012-10-05 Historians have often speculated on the alternative paths the United States might have taken during the Great Depression What if Franklin D Roosevelt had been killed by one of Giuseppe Zangara s bullets in Miami on February 17 1933 Would there have been a New Deal under an administration led by Herbert Hoover had he been reelected in 1932 To what degree were Roosevelt s own ideas and inclinations as opposed to those of his contemporaries essential to the formulation of New Deal policies In Roosevelt the Great Depression and the Economics of Recovery the eminent historian Elliot A Rosen examines these and other questions exploring the causes of the Great Depression and America s recovery from it in relation to the policies and policy alternatives that were in play during the New Deal era Evaluating policies in economic terms and disentangling economic claims from political ideology Rosen argues that while planning efforts and full employment policies were essential for coping with the emergency of the depression from an economic standpoint it is in fact fortunate that they did not become permanent elements of our political economy By insisting that the economic bases of proposals be accurately represented in debating their merits Rosen reveals that the productivity gains which accelerated in the years following the 1929 stock market crash were more responsible for long term economic recovery than were governmental policies Based on broad and extensive archival research Roosevelt the Great Depression and the Economics of Recovery is at once an erudite and authoritative history of New Deal economic policy and timely background reading for current debates on domestic and global economic policy Swedish Economists in the 1930s Debate on Economic Planning Benny Carlson,2018-12-06 The 1930s characterised by repercussions from World War I and the Great Depression was an era of populism nationalism protectionism government intervention and attempts to create planned economies The perceived need for economic planning emerged in Sweden in part due to the increasing political strength of the Social Democrats and their evolution from a party hampered by Marxist fatalism to a pragmatic mass movement The Swedish debate continued beyond World War II and is still relevant to today s economic crises which have resulted in a demand for action coming from below populism and above elitism Carlson surveys the arguments for and against economic planning as they were put forward by leading Swedish economists in the 1930s with a focus on the thoughts of Gustav Cassel Eli Heckscher G sta Bagge Gunnar Myrdal and Bertil Ohlin among others In so doing he provides a timely exploration of the debate on the necessary and desirable extent of state intervention in market economies
