Nuclear Designs Bruce Larkin, 2018-04-17 Global politics has changed with unaccustomed swiftness since the end of the Cold War Eastern Europe is free the Soviet Union has broken up China presses free market economic reform and the United States and Russia have declared a joint commitment to end nuclear war The force of these changes has created a new agenda for global politics and security policy This does not mean that nuclear weapons have lost their centrality Nuclear development programs continue in the major holders of advanced weapons In Israel Pakistan India North Korea Iraq and Iran nuclear intentions are subject to widespread speculation and scrutiny Negotiations for renewal of the Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty remind us that the treaty requires serious efforts to abolish nuclear weapons Nuclear Choices points out that the Cold War s end has not banished mistrust Instead it has opened the door to frank conversation about the usefulness of force and the need to address common fears States now face a global choice among alternative nuclear futures If they desire to avoid runaway nuclear development the choices come down to three the status quo disengagement or abolition Larkin argues that if they chose the status quo they elect a world in which only terror and self restraint keep devastation at bay a world in which instant destruction is possible This study focuses on the nuclear weapons programs of Great Britain China and France because they may be less familiar to students of international affairs Each of these countries has developed a substantial nuclear capability that could decisively shape the result of coming global nuclear decisions Larkin concludes that these three minipowers could conclude that nuclearism serves their interests refuse disengagement and encourage proliferation If they are prepared to abandon nuclearism they have tremendous political leverage on Russia the United States and also on undeclared and aspiring nuclear weapons states For now only the United Kingdom France and China maintain sufficient warhead inventories and production capabilities to have strong effects on how the United States and Russia view their own strategic capabilities Nuclear Choices asserts that governments polities and parties today do not know how to guarantee themselves against weapons of mass destruction They must either acquire the political and social means to achieve such guarantees or accept a world in which nuclearism will continue to cast its shadow over all aspects of nation building It will be of interest to political scientists policymakers military analysts and those interested in the nuclear issue India's Emerging Nuclear Posture Ashley J. Tellis, 2001 This book brings together the many pieces of India's nuclear puzzle and the ramifications for South Asia The author examines the choices facing India from New Delhi's point of view in order to discern which future courses of action appear most appealing to Indian security managers He details how such choices if acted upon would affect U S strategic interests India's neighbors and the world BOOK JACKET News Releases, 1976 Deadly Arsenals Joseph Cirincione, Jon B. Wolfsthal, Miriam Rajkumar, 2005 Deadly Arsenals provides the most up to date and comprehensive assessment available on global proliferation dangers with a critical assessment of international enforcement efforts An invaluable resource for academics policymakers students and the media this atlas includes strategic and historical analysis maps charts and graphs of the spread of nuclear chemical and biological weapons and missile delivery systems descriptions of the weapons and regimes and policies to control them and data on countries that have wanted or have given up weapons of mass destruction A Choice outstanding academic title from one of the premier nonproliferation research teams The new edition addresses the recent dramatic developments in Iran Iraq Libya North Korea and the nuclear black market analyzing strategic and policy implications Contents Part 1 Assessments and Weapons Part 2 Declared Nuclear Weapon States Part 3 Non NPT Nuclear Weapon States Part 4 The Two Hard Cases North Korea and Iran Part 5 Proliferation Success Design Principles and Approaches for Radioactive Waste Repositories IAEA, 2020-12-10 A considerable level of international experience has been gained over the last decades in designing radioactive waste disposal facilities This publication is intended to assist Member States in planning for the disposal of radioactive waste Specifically this publication describes the approaches and principles to be considered by the responsible organizations within a Member State involved in the planning and design of radioactive waste disposal facilities Examples are provided for all waste classes requiring disposal The examples are based on successfully implemented designs or on design concepts that are sufficiently advanced to demonstrate their overall feasibility for the safe disposal of radioactive waste Alternate disposal options are also discussed describing solutions that rely on the conversion of existing facilities such as mines or other underground openings as well as the potential for disposal in boreholes
