October Kill:

Women Who Kill Men Gordon Morris Bakken, Brenda Farrington, 2009 The late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries were a revolutionary period in the lives of women and the shifting perceptions of women and their role in society were equally apparent in the courtroom Women Who Kill Men examines eighteen sensational cases of women on trial for murder from 1870 to 1958 The fascinating details of these murder trials documented in court records and embellished newspaper coverage mirrored the changing public image of women Although murder was clearly outside the norm for standard female behavior most women and their attorneys relied on gendered stereotypes and language to create their defense and sometimes to leverage their status in a patriarchal system Those who could successfully dress and act the part of the victim were most often able to win the sympathies of the jury Gender mattered And though the norms shifted over time the press attorneys and juries were all informed by contemporary gender stereotypes

President's Kill List Luca Trenta, 2024-05-31 From Fidel Castro to Qassem Soleimani the US government has been involved in an array of assassinations and assassination attempts against foreign leaders and officials The President's Kill List reveals how the US government has relied on a variety of methods from the use of poison to the delivery of sniper rifles and from employing hitmen to simply laying the groundwork for local actors to do the deed themselves It shows not only how policymakers decided on assassination but also the level of Presidential control over these decisions Tracing the history of the US government's approach to assassination the book analyses the evolution of assassination policies and for the first time reveals how successive administrations through private justifications and public legitimations ensured assassination remained an available tool
