Portrait Of Pancho Autographed:

Portraits of Persistence Javier Auyero, 2024-03-05 Profiles of triumph and hardship amid massive inequality in Latin America Each chapter of Portraits of Persistence a project of the University of Texas Urban Ethnography Lab offers an intimate portrait of one or two individual lives The subjects are a diverse group of individuals from across the continent grassroots activists and political brokers private security entrepreneurs female drug dealers shantytown dwellers and rural farmers as well as migrants finding routes into and out of the region Through these accounts the writers explore issues that are common throughout today's world precarious work situations gender oppression housing displacement experiences navigating the bureaucracy for asylum seekers state violence environmental devastation and access to good and affordable health care Carefully situating these experiences within the sociohistorical context of their specific local regions or countries editor Javier Auyero and his colleagues consider how people make sense of the paths their lives have taken the triumphs and hardships they have experienced and the aspirations they hold for the future Ultimately these twelve compelling profiles offer unique and personal windows into the region's complex and multilayered reality
