Second Most Important Job In The Country:

Congressional Record United States. Congress,1993 Culture at Work in Aviation and Medicine Robert L. Helmreich,Ashleigh C. Merritt,2019-01-15 Published in 1998 culture forms a complex framework of national organizational and professional attitudes and values within which groups and individuals function The reality and strength of culture become salient when we work within a new group and interact with people who have well established norms and values In this book the authors report the results of their ongoing exploration of the influences of culture in two professions aviation and medicine Their focus is on commercial airline pilots and operating room teams Within these two environments they show the effect of professional national and organizational cultures of individual attitudes and values and team interaction

Estimating global and country-level employment in agrifood systems Davis, B., Mane, E., Gurbuzer, L.Y., Caivano, G., Piedrahita, N., Schneider, K., Azhar, N., Benali, M., Chaudhary, N., Rivera, R., Ambikapathi, R., Winters, P.,2023-02-20 Global and national policy discourse and agendas are moving beyond traditional silos of agriculture nutrition health and climate change to address the challenges facing agrifood systems AFS In this paper we use international labour force statistics to provide the first systematic and documented global estimate quantifying the total number of people employed in AFS We estimate that 1.23 billion people are employed in AFS and that 3.83 billion people worldwide live in households linked to AFS based livelihoods However international labour force statistics focus on the main labour activity in the last seven days and are likely to undercount the total number of people who are engaged in AFS Using household survey data from the harmonized multi country Rural Livelihoods Information System RuLIS database we find that the number of people engaged in AFS is on average 24 percent higher than employment defined only by the main labour activity This analysis shows the relevance of counting secondary jobs and household farming activities to identify all individuals whose livelihoods depend to some degree on AFS
