

A high-angle, low-light photograph of a Mosquito bomber in flight over the ocean at night. The aircraft is seen from a side-on perspective, angled downwards towards the water. It is carrying several large bombs under its wings. A trail of fire and smoke is visible behind the aircraft, indicating it has just dropped its bombs. The ocean surface is dark, with several bright, glowing points of light reflecting off the water, likely from the bombs or other ships. The sky is dark and cloudy.
