Neville,2024-01-31 This book questions the predominance of media abundance as a guiding concept for contemporary mediated politics The authors argue that media abundance is not a universal condition and that certain individuals communities and even nations can more accurately be referred to as media scarce where access to media technologies and content is limited highly controlled or surveilled Through case studies that focus on guerilla militants incarcerated Indigenous people and cold war era infrastructure including Soviet closed or secret cities and Canadian nuclear bunkers the book s chapters interrogate how the once media scarce later speak to and can be heard by the predominant abundant media culture Drawing from several art projects and diverse cultural sites the book highlights how media scarce communities negotiate and otherwise narrate their place in the world their past experiences and lives and escape from subjugation To better understand media scarce politics the book asks

how and when communities become by accident or force by choice or necessity media scarce This innovative and insightful text will appeal to students and scholars around the world working in the areas of media and politics art and politics visual studies surveillance studies and communication studies American Photographer ,1989 Secret City ,1988
