tradition of marriage mean for people who have historically been deprived of its legal status Generally thought of as a convention of the white middle class the marriage plot has received little attention from critics of African American literature In this study Ann duCille uses texts such as Nella Larsen s Quicksand 1928 and Zora Neale Hurston s Their Eyes Were Watching God 1937 to demonstrate that the African American novel like its European and Anglo American counterparts has developed around the marriage plot what she calls the coupling convention Exploring the relationship between racial ideology and literary and social conventions duCille uses the coupling convention to trace the historical development of the African American women s novel She demonstrates the ways in which black women appropriated this novelistic device as a means of expressing and reclaiming their own identity More than just a study of the marriage tradition in black women s fiction however The Coupling Convention takes up and takes on many different meanings of tradition It challenges the notion of a single black literary tradition or of a single black feminist literary canon grounded in specifically black female language and experience as it explores the ways in which white and black male and female mainstream and marginalized traditions and canons have influenced and cross fertilized each other Much more than a period study The Coupling Convention spans the period from 1853 to 1948 addressing the vital questions of gender subjectivity race and the canon that inform literary study today In this original work duCille offers a new paradigm for reading black women s fiction

American Hybrid Poetics Amy Moorman Robbins,2014-07-21 American Hybrid Poetics explores the ways in which hybrid poetics a playful mixing of disparate formal and aesthetic strategies have been the driving force in the work of a historically and culturally diverse group of women poets who are part of a robust tradition in contesting the dominant cultural order Amy Moorman Robbins examines the ways in which five poets Gertrude Stein Laura Mullen Alice Notley Harryette Mullen and Claudia Rankine use hybridity as an implicitly political strategy to interrupt mainstream American language literary genres and visual culture and expose the ways in which mass culture in the twentieth and twenty first centuries has had a powerfully standardizing impact on the collective American imagination By forcing encounters between incompatible traditions consumer culture with the avant garde low culture forms with experimental poetics prose poetry with linguistic subversiveness these poets bring together radically competing ideologies and highlight their implications for lived experience Robbins argues that it is precisely because these poets have mixed forms that their work has gone largely unnoticed by leading members and critics in experimental poetry circles
